Need 200 Donors On June 8 To Fill Local Quota

Because of recent storm disasters in the United States, there is now a greater demand for blood. A Bloodmobile will be here June 8 to take donations of blood. This unit will be parked in front of the American Legion Hall all day. Hours for donating blood are 9:00 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. A total of 200 donors is needed to fill the quota for this area. Minors, age 18 to 21, can donate blood by obtaining a form from Roland Black at the Chamber of Commerce office or Don Standley at the First National Bank, and having their parents to fill out the card and sign it.

It has been publicized repeatedly that blood is needed for wounded soldiers in Korea. If you desire to be a blood donor while the unit is here you can fill out a donor's pledge card. See Don Standley or Roland Black.

A soldier who recently returned from Korea said blood was badly needed for the U. N. soldiers fighting there. He said the wounded soldiers who received blood had an excellent chance to recover. He also said there were cases where wounded soldiers died because the blood was not available.

The returned soldier said the process runs like this: soldiers receive blood at a forward station, when blood is available. By receiving this blood they have a chance to live to reach a hospital where they have a better chance for survival. Some of the wounded never reach the hospital because there is not enough blood at the front to keep them alive. "By giving a pint of blood when the bloodmobile unit is here you help our wounded men survive the rigors of war," the soldier said.

Three Scholarships Totaling $500 Awarded Sheets, Sanders, Green

Three scholarships in the total amount of $500, offered by Taylor & Sons, will be awarded Thursday night to Grace Sheets, Marietta Sanders, and Ralph Green, 1953 graduates of Canyon High School, who placed first, second, and third, respectively, in the final count.

First place is a $250 award; second, $150; and third, $100. The awards are payable to West Texas State College and are not directed to any specific course of study.

The winners were selected by the community people. The name of the customer's favorite senior was written on the cash register receipt. Votes were counted one cent each.

Miss Sheets was sports editor of the high school paper, The Eagle's Tale. She was also senior class favorite, football queen attendant, member of FHA and FTA, and high school band for three years.

"I am really glad I got it and I worked hard for it. I would like to thank everyone who voted for me," said Marietta. Miss Sanders played basketball four years, three for the high school basketball team. and played one year of volleyball. She was also a member of the band one year, and member of FHA.

"I will try, through the use of the scholarship, to fulfill the expectations that are required of this honor. I wish to thank both the organization and the community people for making this possible. I am very appreciative of my many friends," Ralph said.

Ralph recently won the Dorinda E. Bond Award, a summer scholarship to Northwestern University, and the National Scholastic Press Association's Journeyman's Award. Also, Ralph was drum major this year, FTA District President, senior class reporter, and science club president.

During the entire contest, Grace and Ralph were never below third place on the weekly count. Marietta joined them in the coveted positions three weeks before the contest closed.

For three years Rev. Wilbanks has resided in Canyon, coming here from Louisville, Kentucky. His first pastorate was at Bonham, and his second at Mediera, Ohio. Rev. Lester L. Hill, pastor of the First Methodist Church, pronounced the commencement prayer and Supt. Joe A. Gibson made the announcements prior to the sermon by Rev. Wilbanks. Rev. Win R. Matsler, pastor of the First Christian Church, gave the benediction, and the orchestra provided music for the recessional.

"Faith Is Roots Of All Freedom" Says Clayborne

Rev. Richard Clayborne, pastor of the First Christian Church at Borger, told more than 200 graduating students of West Texas State College Sunday morning that "people of the world who had lost their freedom, first lost their faith." Clayborne was speaking to the students in the baccalaureate services conducted at 11:00 a. m. Sunday.

"Freedom is rooted in faith," the speaker said. Faith is made up of three parts: Faith in oneself, in one's fellowman, and in God. He concluded his commencement sermon by saying that man is a creature of faith and is inherently a creature of faith in God.

Perform Duties Well Is Advice Given WT Grads

Dr. D. W. Morris, president of Southern Illinois University, gave good advice to West Texas State graduates Monday morning when he urged them "to excel in whatever you do is the most important thing in life."

Grads were advised never to be satisfied with the average jobs of life. He urged that members of the class strive to accomplish the unusual.

"Today, there is a tremendous need for excellence in our world," he said. "There is more opportunity today for young people than ever before, but, by necessity, for those who have courage and resolution to do a job well."

"Within the past 20 years have come more complete, more compelling changes to our civilization than came throughout history," Dr. Morris said.

He declared that in all fields, from television to theology, there is an opportunity for youth to give back to society what it has received, and in return for its opportunities, to give resolve, courage, and a desire for excellence.

Dr. James P. Cornette paid tribute to the work of Frank R. Phillips who retired this year as a member of the faculty after 30 years of service as the head of the Department of Agriculture.

Keep in Mind One Fact: The Children Must Be Cared For

The meeting of citizens Tuesday night was full of interest to the schools of Canyon. The meeting was attended by representatives of all five citizens committee which have been making a study of the school situation for several months.

It is only reasonable that differences of opinion would come out of such a meeting. No two persons see the situation exactly alike.

One thing should be kept in the minds of all citizens: No definite steps have been taken by either the citizens committee or the Board of Education regarding the future development of the school system. None will be taken without further study and investigation. Regardless of the wild rumors which are floating around Canyon regarding the demands of those citizens who have been studying the question, the study revealed to them certain conditions, and whatever they may think of the situation is the result of serious study and planning, rather than second hand judgment.

Let's look at the situation coolly, and from a practical standpoint. The cost is a minor question; and therefore should not be made the major problem at this stage of study.

In the first place, the Board of Regents of Teachers Colleges has ordered that all public school students be withdrawn from the campus by Sept. 1, 1955. This means that it is up to the citizens of Canyon to provide school facilities for these children. While the faculty and administration of West Texas State would like to keep a small part of these children for teacher training, the Board of Regents has the final say.

Regardless of what the regents may say about the situation, it is up to the people of Canyon to provide training for the children who are now enrolled in the training department of West Texas State.

Canyon could hardly be classed or claim the distinction of being the "Educational Center of Northwest Texas" should we fail or refuse to care for these children.

According to the prevailing sentiment of those attending the meeting Tuesday night, a meeting attended by a large number of representative citizens, it was agreed that the Board of Education should select a reputable and experienced architect who would make a study of the needs of Canyon; taking into consideration the idea of building an additional structure of at least 18 class rooms, with cafeteria, auditorium, and gymnasium facilities; completely remodel and add to the present school plant in the west part of Canyon; and then see what the cost would be.

Two architects recently appeared before the Board, making a very, very rough estimate of $550,000 for such a job. On the other hand the architects estimated that it would cost $950,000 to build a new high school building, with a complete overhaul and remodeling of the present plant to be used for grade school pupils.

It was pointed out that removal of all grades from the present plant to a new building would leave ample facilities and room to take care of the Junior and Senior high schools for several years.

High school buildings are much more costly than elementary school buildings, therefore the difference in the estimated prices.

The Canyon News gives this information at this time merely for the purpose of setting at ease some of the wild rumors which you may hear. The figures may be entirely too high or too low, but they were estimates of the architects, not bids or definite figures.

Congress Kills Chances For Free Mail Service in Canyon

Without knowing anything positive about the matter, we will bet a plugged nickel that there will be no "free" mail delivery service in Canyon for many months to come.

The situation is pretty clear: The House of Representatives passed the appropriation bill for the post office department last week, slightly smaller than the budget director recommended.

There is one provision which provides that no new service shall be added except in rare cases where the department can change methods of procedure without damage to the service, and therein the government would save money by such a change.

This means, according to our humble opinion, that no town now without "free" delivery services will be able to secure such service. It was believed that the service in Canyon would cost about $20,000, with an added income of only about $1,800. Uncle Sam would therefore be called upon to dig up the difference.

Of course this little old appropriation, so far as Congress is concerned, is small potatoes. The addition of a few thousand dollars would mean little to the whole, but when you add all of these small potatoes together you upset the demand of the President and the people for economy.

The people of Canyon and Texas voted for President Eisenhower for just one reason: They wanted economy in government. The only way to reach this goal is to cut out all expenses, regardless of how small they may seem.

Women on Juries Will Likely Be Approved by Voters of Texas

It is apparent that women will be allowed to serve on juries in Texas!

The first time when the constitutional amendment was proposed allowing women this privilege, the proposal was defeated.

The amendment will be submitted once more. This time it will probably carry. Sentiment has changed.

Those counties in which provision has not been made to care for women jurors in criminal cases had just as well get busy and do so now.

Incidentally, this may be another reason why Randall county should start plans now to build a new court house in Canyon.

Women on juries will soon be a fact. If the women want to serve in this capacity, they will certainly make as good jurors as men.

The man who attempts something unusual is generally laughed at if he fails and hailed as a great guy if he succeeds.

It is surprising how quickly a busy man can finish his day's work when there is a golf or tennis game on schedule.

President Eisenhower Appeals To People on Tax Issue

President Eisenhower appealed to Congress and the people over the radio Tuesday night for a continuation of high income taxes in order to meet the cost of government.

He blamed the situation on to past Democratic administrations which have increased government spending without regard to efficiency. Naturally he has a good point there. Spending and waste in any war is terrible. The waste of World War I, followed by the waste of World War II, was sufficient to break many nations engaged in those wars. Big hearted America has so far withstood bankruptcy, but we are certainly in a bad fix.

In order to elect Eisenhower, the Republicans promised a reduction in income taxes; and a balanced budget.

It is unfortunate for the Eisenhower administration that he stepped into office in the middle of a fiscal year. Appropriations for the present year had been made and more than half spent by Presiden Truman. The former president made the present budget which is being worked over by Congress.

No one in Washington seems to have taken seriously the war in Korea. No economy can be possible with a war in progress 8,000 miles from our shores.

While the President is doing everything humanly possible to hold down expenses, he will never be able to succeed because of the peculiar condition under which he finds his administration.

The Republicans should have been a little more cautious in their promises during the campaign. They would not be so badly embarrassed at the present time by the mounting financial debt of the government.

Feudin' and Fussin' With Poor Old England Settles Nothing

We are advised not to become too incensed about the feudin' and fussin' and fightin' which is being engaged in by Churchill and the Laborites over in London. All of this will lead to nothing except the process of letting off a lot of steam on the part of our adversaries.

We are further advised not to forget the valiant battles in which England has engaged and which saved us from invasion and the loss of millions of dollars in property.

We are not forgetting all of this, but deep in our hearts no American cannot fail to become peeved at the so-called great leaders of England for refusing to accept the inevitable results of defeat of a broken old nation, which still insists in drinking up the vast amounts of money which has been sent to the government across the seas for the unholy purpose of carrying on the unprofitable frills of government.

Of course England does not intend invasion of America and again subjecting us to the rule of tyranny. Churchill remembers too well the conditions under which his nation was kicked out of America; he recalls too well the fact that England has lost most of her empire; that England is broke and must call upon America for aid.

Yet he insists upon playing politics with Laborites, for the mere purpose of holding onto his job as head of the Conservative government. He is a politician.

Recognition of Past Services To Community Is a Tough Job

The lack of recognition on the part of citizens for services performed in any community by local citizens was deplored by a speaker in Canyon last week. The speaker pointed to the high character of citizenship and of community promotion which had been rendered in Randall county by one of our citizens.

"Some folks would prefer to buy an unknown article from a stranger than to buy one of known merit and price from a good citizen of the community," stated the speaker.

The deduction is correct.

There are too many community chiselers—fellows who move in and take advantage of the work of men who have poured their lives, their money, and their talents into the building of the community.

The people of every town deplore these free riders. But there is no way to keep them out. This is a free country.

So long as there are persons living in the community who prefer to patronize this class, they will continue to do business in that community.

Congratulations to the Canyon High School Seniors

Congratulations are certainly due to the Senior Class of Canyon High School.

The class is honored for the high record which has been achieved during the past year, and likewise for the ambitions which a majority of the class has for higher education.

Time was when high school seniors thought that they had just about accomplished everything when they got their high school diplomas.

Young folks are smarter today than they were in years past, and they now realize just how little they have been able to accomplish in their public school curriculum. Now they plan to enter college to continue their education.

It takes a heap of learning these days in order to get by. The smart boys who quit school below the college level are to be pitied for getting the impression that they are smart. They will learn in future years that the world has no time to devote to training the untrained.

After trying for a long time, we are finally convinced that one of the hardest ways to do anything is to put it off.

It's a very rare individual who cannot find an excuse for not doing the favor he is obligated to return some day.

Hard work has never killed a man but there are any number of cripples who were injured trying to dodge it.

Sometimes it would be a good idea if the people who listen to public speakers would get up and talk back.

The average adult, with all his wisdom, rarely understands how much the average child understands.

Every city, town and village in the United States boasts that he has the "best" climate in the world.

Highlights and Sidelights FROM Your State CAPITOL

By Vern Sanford
Texas Press Association

AUSTIN, Tex. —Is Governor Allan Shivers going to run for a third term?

That question came up at the tail end of a legislative session which has failed to accomplish major parts of the governor's program.

Governor Shivers has said that he wants to see his program completed.

Questioned by reporters, the governor replied that he "might some day" make another political race.

Asked directly whether he planned to run for another term as governor, Shivers responded:

"I don't know. But there have been lots of people nice enough to suggest it. I have always said that I want to do whatever the majority of the people want."

It may seem a long time until the next statewide election, but the prospective candidates are already preparing their campaigns.

If Shivers should decide to try for a third time, the plans of other hopefuls would have to be revised.

Lieutenant Governor Ben Ramsey, who has been considered a gubernatorial candidate, said that he will ask for re-election to the office he now holds if Shivers again seeks the chief executive's job.

It is problematical if others thinking about the governor's race would get into it if Shivers did.

These include Attorney General John Ben Shepperd, Speaker Reuben Senterfitt, and Land Commissioner Bascom Giles.

An exception might be Ralph Yarborough the Austin attorney who campaigned hard for the office last year and has indicated he plans to run again.

One part of Governor Shivers' program that failed in the Legislature was a pay raise for teachers.

The solons were ready to give the pedagogues an additional $300 per year, but the teacher lobby held out for $600 or nothing.

Thus the teachers got nothing.

Their hope now is that a tax on natural gas, passed by the Legislature two years ago and now being tested in the courts, will be finally approved.

Should that happen, it is expected that the governor will call a special session of the Legislature to appropriate the money that the state has been collecting under the terms of the tax.

The money has been piling up, unspent, pending the final outcome of the court action.

The state now has $15 million of this money, and collections are continuing at the rate of about $1 million per month.

Last week, attorneys for some of the gas companies involved asked the state supreme court to reconsider its opinion upholding the tax.

If the court stands by its original decision, the gas companies may either drop their suit or take it to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Governor Shivers has predicted that the state can begin spending the money later this year.

He wants to use it for teacher pay increases, salary boosts for state employees, and construction of needed state buildings.

Voters of Texas will decide at the general election in November of next year on a number of changes in the state constitution. Here are some of the questions the people will be called upon to answer:

Whether teacher and state employe retirement credits shall be interchangeable.

Whether county hospital districts with taxing powers may be created.

Whether the terms of local elected officials shall be lengthened from two to four years.

Whether a $5 million surplus in the Confederate Pension fund may be used to build a state courts building and a state office building.

Whether women shall be required to serve on juries.

All these proposed constitutional amendments were voted by the Legislature.

After two filibusters in the Senate and a storm of opposition in the House, the legislature finally passed a bill to set up a state toll road authority.

The original bill would have limited the authority to the construction of a Dallas-Fort Worth turnpike, but as finally passed, the bill carried no such limitation. The Dallas-Fort Worth road, however, gets first priority.

After the bill becomes law by virtue of the governor's signature, he will implement it by appointment of six persons who will constitute the authority, along with members of the state highway commission.

The authority will have power to issue bonds and use the money to build roads. When the bonds are retired, the roads will become the property of the state.

The Dallas-Fort Worth turnpike, first to be constructed by the authority, will cost about $30 million, or nearly $1 million per mile.

Department of Public Safety investigators have filed charges against six persons,, all Negroes, in connection with a fraudulent college diploma racket.

The inquiry was made by the department at the request of the Texas Education Agency.

A. C. Cason, a department investigator, said that the probing is still going on and more charges may be filed.

J. W. Edgar, state commissioner of education, said local school districts have lost some money because of the higher salaries paid teachers with fake college degrees.

Three Texas officials returned from Washington, where they testified before a Senate committee in regard to the states' claims to the continental shelf.

The Texas representatives were Land Commissioner Bascom Giles, Attorney General John Ben Shepperd and Railroad Commissioner William J. Murray.

They all expressed gratification that President Eisenhower had signed a bill returning title to the tidelands to the states.

As he signed the bill, the President said, "I will always resist federal encroachment upon rights and affairs of the states."

As a result of the bill, Texas keeps its "historic boundary," which extends 10½ miles into the Gulf of Mexico. Oil wells have already been drilled in this submerged land.

Governor Shivers has appointed Weldon Hart as chairman and executive director of the Texas Employment Commission.

Hart has been one of the governor's top aides. He will succeed Harry Benge Crozier on July 1. Legislators upped the salary from $12,500 to $13,100 a year.

Austin, teeming with lawmakers and lobbyists for three months, took on a quieter aspect this week, not only because of the legislature's adjournment, but also because University of Texas and other students left for summer vacations.

SUGGESTION: If you haven't contributed to both the San Angelo and Waco tornado relief funds, do so today. People in both cities are in urgent need of your help.

7 Years—6 Times More Rural Telephones

THIS SCENE HAS BEEN REPEATED many times in recent years, as telephone people worked to extend service to the state's farming areas. In just seven years, the number of Southwestern Bell rural telephones in Texas has increased six times. And we're continuing to push more lines out into rural areas every month. In 1953 we hope to be able to spend more than $4½ million on this type of construction alone. SOUTHWESTERN BELL . . . A TEAM OF 28,000 TEXANS . . . PARTNERS IN TEXAS' PROGRESS.

Memorial Day 1953

For pennies, you can keep a light aglow in your home. But the price to keep this torch of liberty aflame is so great as to be almost beyond comprehension.

This torch that says "this is Freedom's cradle, this is Liberty's home," has been kept aglow by men and women who have given their lives that its beam may never be dimmed.

This light must never fail.

LIPSTICK LOGIC
BY LOUISE ALLEN

We read the other day that movie actor Edward Arnold thinks men should spend more time in the kitchen. Says they would be closer to their families, understand their wives' problems better, and have a lot of fun learning to whip up delectable dishes.

We know husbands who would immediately retort that the kitchen may be a wonderful place to have a good time, but that's it's the last place in the house they'd go expecting to spend more time with their wives. Of course, they'd be joking. Wives do spend a lot of time in the kitchen — especially those whose husbands fancy themselves as first rate male cooks.

In our early married days we used to have dinner occasionally with an interesting older couple. The husband prided himself on making a certain spaghetti dish with meat balls, and his wife confided that the dishwashing on those occasions was something. Said it started shortly after noon and went on until an hour after the guests finally said goodnight. Furthermore, he cooked all over the kitchen. And between running errands for him, she had to clear off a corner somewhere to prepare his favorite German cookies, get together a salad to be served with the super dressing he demanded, make coffee, and generally round out a company dinner.

Our own experience with male cooks has been strictly as an outside observer, but offhand we'd say they are considerably more exacting than the run-of-the-mill husband who doesn't even know which cabinet door to open to find the cracker box. And although we occasionally feel a twinge of envy for the women with kitchen-broke husbands, we then remember that the fellow who doesn't understand culinary secrets is probably a much easier animal to feed.

YOUR SENATOR REPORTS

BY LYNDON B. JOHNSON

National Guard

A storm of protest has been stirred up in Texas by a proposal that, if put into effect, would probably kill the National Guard.

At present a Governor has the right to issue a proclamation stating that enlistment in the National Guard of young men under 18½ years of age is necessary to maintain the Guard's strength. These enlistees cannot be drafted. Dr. John A. Hannah, Assistant Secretary of Defense, has suggested this authority be cancelled. He said two million trained reservists are available to maintain the strength of the Guard.

But Texas Adjutant General K. L. Berry says the reservists "simply will not enlist." The only way, General Berry declared, "to maintain our strength is to be able to enlist under 18½ year olds." I have received a thousand or so letters from Texans backing him up.

I turned these protests over to Dr. Hannah. He writes me that he has not yet offered his suggestion as a recommendation to the Secretary of Defense. He adds that he will discuss the matter with representatives of the National Guard Association before making a recommendation.

All Texans know the great value of our National Guard. We don't want it weakened or killed.

What's going to happen to rural electrification?

More and more Texans are worriedly asking that question. Representatives of electric cooperatives from Perryton, Hondo and San Augustine were here last week trying to learn the answer.

President Eisenhower's budget requested $3,736,000 for the continuing fund of Southwestern Power Administration. The House cut it to $150,000. I hope we can get the President's recommendation restored in the Senate.

I also hope we can keep the present type of contract, under which cooperatives can deal with the government agency for electric power through private company lines. The plan has worked well in Texas.

Appropriations

Senator Taft, Senate Majority Leader, announced February 9 that the Administration's goal was to get all appropriation measures to the Senate by May 15. On that date, only four such bills had passed the House. They provided appropriations for Independent Offices; Interior; State, Justice, Commerce; and Treasury, Post Office. The big money bills are still to come.

News Briefs

A House subcommittee has approved a bill to clear the way for Texas to establish Eisenhower Park near Denison. The bill would authorize the Army to sell the State 160 acres of land along Lake Texhoma for the park. It is sponsored by House Democratic Leader Sam Rayburn.

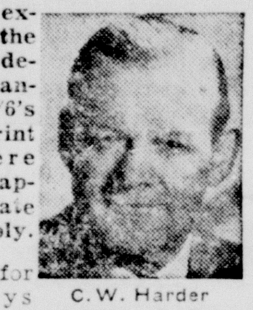
WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

A plan to solve newsprint problem is before Congress.

* * *

Background data supporting this plan was amassed during Senate Small Business Committee study of newsprint situation about a year ago. Facts were found, for example, that the U. S. press depends on Canada for 5/6's of its newsprint supply where producers appear to operate as a monopoly.



C.W. Harder

It is time for action, says Sen. Francis Case (Rep. S. D.).

* * *

He has introduced a bill that will permit a newsprint industry in the vast Tongass National Forests of Southeastern Alaska

* * *

Although these reserves were held inviolate for years, recently permission was granted an international firm to cut pulp timber to make cellulose.

* * *

Senator Case feels time has come to protect interests of independent U. S. publishers.

* * *

His bill has several interesting provisions. A private company shall operate Alaskan newsprint industry. It must agree to reserve a certain percentage of production to meet needs of American newspapers with circulation of 10,000 or less.

* * *

In addition, the bill recognizes the financial problems faced in establishing an Alaskan newsprint industry. Therefore, the emergency rapid tax amortization allowed major U. S. industries will be granted. As it costs around $70,000 per ton of capacity to build a newsprint plant, the bill also provides RFC may loan up to $50 million, to be paid back over 50 years.

* * *

Strenuous objection to this bill from both domestic and foreign sources can be expected. Former State Department opposed action on newsprint problem.

* * *

But in Senator Case's mind the problem is quite simple.

* * *

Preservation of American liberties, both political and economic, rest on a free and independent press in the smaller communities of the nation.

* * *

Due to price gouging by Canadian newsprint producers, many publishers must spend 50 cents out of every dollar taken in just for paper. Mortality among independent newspapers has reached a new high.

* * *

On the other side of the picture, more and more the big cities are being served only with a chain newspaper. And due to what many consider laxity by the Federal Communications Commission, television and radio station ownership is being given to big combines, many of them also having interests in metropolitan newspapers.

* * *

Thus, more and more, weekly and small daily newspapers remain the only institutions where freedom of expression is found in the United States.

* * *

Opposition to this bill will undoubtedly claim this is a plan by which newspaper publishers are trying to use the government to feather their own nests.

* * *

But the facts are the major support comes from independent businessmen not connected with the publishing business. The leaders of these businessmen feel that as so goes the independent newspaper, so goes the freedom of enterprise in all fields of endeavor. The progress of this bill will be watched by millions.

UNUSED FUNDS

The Government had more than $139,000,000,000 in unspent appropriations as of January 31st, according to a Senate-House committee. Of this $82,400,000,000 was available for military spending and $13,300,000,000 for foreign aid. Besides the military and foreign aid balances, unspent appropriations included: Atomic energy, $4,500,000,000; Department of Agriculture $6,700,000,000, and Government housing agencies $5,200,00,000.

SEE-WORTHY

On the beach a genial fat man watched a group of shapely young ladies in scanty swim suits as they went through their morning setting-up exercises.

"Do you think this sort of thing is really good for reducing?" a sour-visaged acquaintance demanded.

"Unquestionably!" beamed the fat man. "Why, I walk three miles every morning to watch it!"

Robert A. Taft, U. S. Senator from Ohio: "We could destroy our liberty by a military and foreign expenditure in time of peace so great that the free economic system cannot survive."

Arthur H. Sulzberger, publisher The New York Times: "Truth is a sensitive companion, difficult to catch up with and likely to flee if suspicion appears."

Bob Hope, radio and screen actor: "Laughter is the special property of free men in a free land, who are to laugh at anything . . . or anyone . . . especially themselves."

Hereford Cattle Developed in County By Lee John Hutson

By Mrs. Clyde W. Warwick

(The following biography was written by Mrs. Warwick and entered in the essay contest at the annual meeting of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Society, winning second place.)

LEE JOHN HUTSON

BORN NOV. 9, 1850 DIED JAN. 14, 1941

Lee John Hutson came to Randall County February 16th, 1889, sent here by The Cedar Valley Land and Cattle Company, known also as the T-Anchor Ranch. This was an English concern which Major Ewing had organized in London, England in 1884, with American headquarters in Kansas City. At the time Mr. Hutson was sent to be manager of the company it owned practically all the east half of Randall County. When they bought the outfit in 1885 from Mr. Munson for the sum of $800,000 it comprised 300,000 acres of land owned and leased, 25,000 head of cattle, and 325 horses.

Up to 1882, it drove the largest herd in the upper Panhandle. On this property Leigh Dyer, a brother-in-law of Colonel Charles Goodnight, in 1878, built the second house erected in the north 36 counties of the Panhandle of Texas. It is the first house built of hewn logs in the Panhandle and these logs were brought from the canyons at Fal de Hour. It has the distinction of being the only ranch headquarters bought by the State of Texas to preserve.

The ranch had adopted the T-Anchor brand about June 1882 and this house was and still is known as The T-Anchor Ranch Headquarters. It is still standing today on the West Texas State College Farm one and one-half miles north of Canyon.

In 1889 when Randall County was organized J. W. Turner who was cook at the T-Anchor Ranch was elected Justice of the Peace and had his office in this house on the Ranch.

Close Out Ranch

Hutson was sent here to close out the land and cattle of the T-Anchor Ranch due to the heavy losses the company had sustained following the drouth of 1885 which had hurt the cattle badly. This drouth was the worst ever known in the Panhandle leaving the cattle so poor and weak they were unable to resist the rigorous Panhandle winter. This drouth was followed by the worst blizzard in the history of the Panhandle. Cattle perished by the thousands. The T-Anchor suffered heavy losses and sent John Hutson here to close out the Company. It took Hutson six years to sell out the land and what cattle were left from the blizzard.

In the letters which Hutson wrote to the Company after his arrival at the ranch, it is clear that he did not want to sell out the ranch. He was sure the Company could make money if they would change to a steer ranch. Buying steers in the spring and selling in the fall.

On June 4th, 1889, he wrote to C. D. Fisher, "I would strongly advise you make this a steer herd. You can reduce that at any time, at short notice. The expenses of running ranch would be much less and the risk of winter loss light compared with a cow herd. I am sure more money can be made by buying good yearling steers."

He also advised putting down wells in the various sections the company owned so the cattle would not have to go so far for water, and the buying of better bulls to improve the herd. Hutson was successful in getting the company to do these things but the coming of the settlers proved too much and the T-Anchor Ranch was dissolved.

County Organized

Mr. Hutson opposed the coming of the settlers and the organization of Randall County in every way possible as he saw the effect it would have on the ranching industry.

In a letter written June 4th, 1889, to C. D. Fisher he stated, "Conner, a settler living about two miles south of the ranch is locating a town on his section and making endeavors to organize the county and get the county seat here. We are doing everything possible to prevent it and think we shall succeed, but it will be only a short time before enough legal voters will be here to probably outvote us."

Again in his weekly report of June 15th, 1889, he writes, "Conner is still at work among the settlers trying to organize the county right away. We are, however, watching the matter and will do our best to defeat it."

On June 27, 1889, he wrote, "Randall County was organized at the Commissioners' Court of Potter Co. on the 25th inst. notwithstanding our opposition. The election of county officers etc., is to be held on 27th July."

On June 29th, 1889, he wrote, "We are on excellent terms with settlers, and think we can elect commissioners who will be economical in matters of taxes and etc. We dropped all opposition to the matter as soon as we found determination to allow organization by commissioners of Potter Co. This move on our part pleased the settlers."

Although Mr. Hutson was unable to convince the Cedar Valley Land and Cattle Company of the value of the Panhandle he believed in it so strongly himself that he invested all the money he could get into land buying many sections and began raising cattle on his own. A letter from his wife, Mrs. Katherine Hutson Day, Long Beach, Calif., states, "Mr. Hutson owned what was known as the largest 'Out Door' herd of registered Hereford cattle in America of which he was very proud. He exhibited them at stock shows at Chicago, Denver, Kansas City and Fort Worth. Tom Dowlen took care of these cattle, helped exhibit them, groomed and cared for them. He had a houseful of the blue ribbons they won."

Organize Cattle Breeders

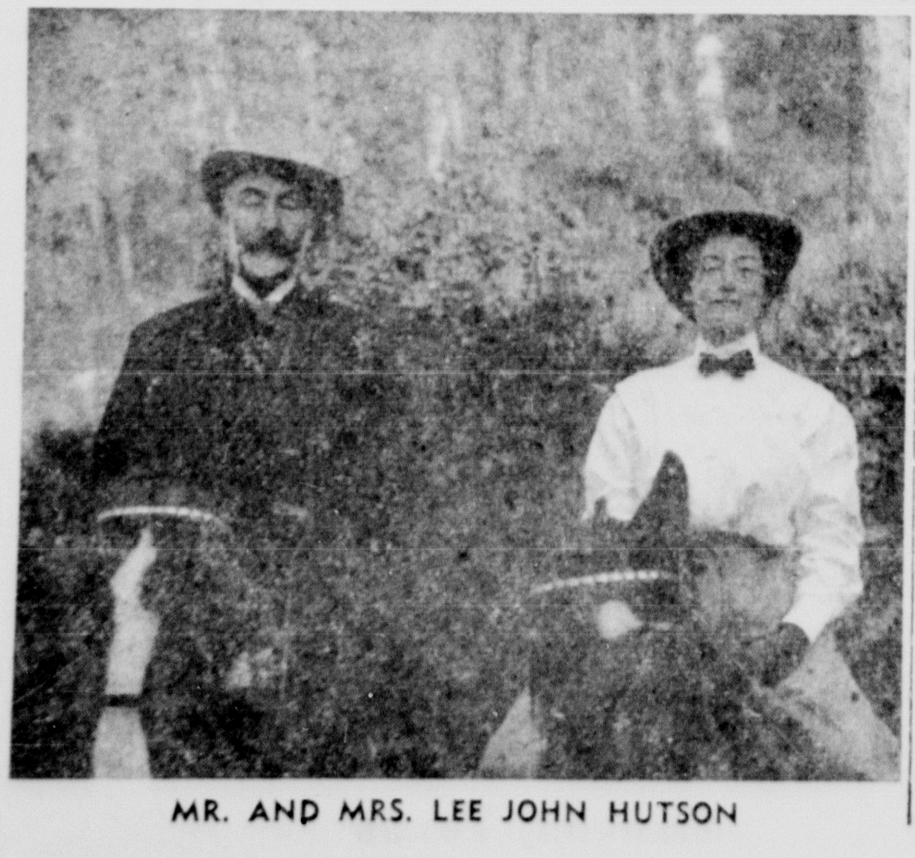
Mr. Hutson was one of 13 men who met at the Old Amarillo Hotel on April, 1907, to form an association for Hereford Cattle breeders. On April 6, 1910, John Hutson was elected vice-president of this association.

At the time of his death, Jan. 14, 1911, he had made the grade of Hereford cattle in the Panhandle grow better than any other man up to that time. R. A. Terrill stated in a special edition of The Canyon News which he published June 25th, 1909, that John Hutson had developed better cattle than any man in Texas or the Southwest. His ranches were well stocked with the highest grade Herefords.

As early as 1910 he sold 16 bulls and cows for an average price of $600. His bulls and cows when shown at the various stock shows always won the ribbons. In 1908 at the Denver show his bull "Sally's Dale," took first prize. His bull "Strike Eight" was second in his class and his yearling "Levil's Prince" was leader in his class. At this show he won numerous ribbons and premiums on other stock exhibited.

Expanded Activities

On some of his land that he considered suitable he did diversified farming. On a section he owned adjoining Canyon he grew alfalfa and in 1908 he sold a quarter of this section for $100 per acre which justified his belief in the future of this country.



MR. AND MRS. LEE JOHN HUTSON

In 1909 he had two main ranches, one on the Palo Duro northwest of Canyon, and one on the Tierra Blanca just south of Umbarger. It was on these ranches that he developed his fine stock of Herefords.

Mr. Hutson also bought land in New Mexico. He owned the townsite of Texico on the New Mexico side, some of which he sold for $30,000.

Mr. Hutson was also a large owner of property in Canyon and he never hesitated to do everything in his power to advance the interests of the town and county.

He was a stockholder in the First National Bank of Canyon, a member of the board of directors and Vice-President.

John Hutson wanted to locate Canyon City on the land now owned by the City of Amarillo and used as a water reservoir. Hutson later bought the land himself, selling to C. T. Word, who, in turn sold to the city of Amarillo.

Was City Builder

He was one of the first contributors to the fund of $100,100 raised by the citizens of Canyon to secure the college for Canyon. He gave $5,000 for this purpose.

Mrs. Hutson Day writes that Mr. Hutson owned at least half of Canyon. He donated land to build an Episcopal Church at Canyon and also land for a Catholic Church at Umbarger and established a German Catholic community at Umbarger.

Preserved Live Timber

One of Mr. Hutson's greatest contributions to Randall County and the Panhandle was his preservation of the live timber in the Palo Duro Park. When the ranches began breaking up and the settlers came he kept two of his cow-hands stationed in the Palo Duro Park and would not let the settlers cut any of the live timber in the Park.

He would give them all the dead timber they wanted but none were allowed to cut the live timber in the park. So scarce was wood on the plains some of the early settlers might have denuded the park. This action of his has preserved the wooded beauty of the park for the thousands of people who now visit the Park yearly.

Ranch Record Kept

Hutson kept a very accurate account of all the affairs of the Ranch as long as he was manager. These accounts in his own hand writing are in the Panhandle-Plains Museum at Canyon and are of great interest as well as value.

He has listed the names of all employees, their wages, the food bought, the amount of food on hand, where the cow-hands were working and where the wagons were.

He reported each week on the weather and on Nov. 16, 1889, wrote the following: "Weather: The snow storm of last week was followed by very cold damp weather, which kept the snow on the ground for six days so that the cattle could get nothing to eat on the plains during this time. This caused a very large drift of Northern cattle which kept our men busy keeping them off our North fence and throwing out those that broke through.

"The loss 100 miles N. W. has been very severe. The storm in New Mexico and in Texas line was much more severe than here. A large number of cattle and sheep being dead, and five boys frozen to death while trying to hold a herd.

"The bulk of our cattle were in the canyons, and did not drift or suffer."

This would seem to prove the belief by most of the early settlers that the winters here were much more severe in those early days.

Salary Was $125 Month

In 1889 when Lee John Hutson came as foreman of the T-Anchor the Company paid taxes on 80 sections of land, and in 1895 the T-Anchor threw up its lease.

Hutson drew his first salary from the T-Anchor Ranch on Feb. 16, 1889. He was employed for $125 per month; an unusually high salary for those times. It was generally believed that he came here directly from England, but in his papers at the Museum he had written a letter to the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York asking about his policy. This company writes that he took out a policy with them on February 3, 1885, and at that time he was manager of Mount Hope Ranch, Kansas.

This policy states he was born in England on November 9, 1849, but does not give the name of the town where he was born or his parents. The date of his birth on this policy differs with the date on his tomb-stone in Llano Cemetery, Amarillo, where he is buried. There his birth is given as Nov. 9, 1850.

Friendly Man

Mr. Hutson was a friendly man. All who knew him speak of his friendliness, his generosity. He was a well educated man, a man of refined tastes, always well groomed, erect in stature.

Mamie Conner Bradford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Conner, and Mrs. C. J. L. Lownes, as well as many others, say he was an accomplished pianist. Mamie says he used to come to their home and play the piano for hours at a time.

Mr. Hutson seemed always anxious to make friends. In a letter written May 18, 1889, to C. D. Fisher about his appointment as manager of the T-Anchor Ranch he wrote:

"I think my references will satisfy the directors. I am aware of the unsuccessful state of all English Cattle Companies and assure you that under my management the strictest economy with efficiency will be enforced."

"I do not wish to brag on myself, but I am ambitious and wish to make a success of the company that will have full confidence in me and believe I can provide an estimate of the value of the cattle after the count is made."

In a letter June 4th, 1889, just about four months after his arrival, he said: "I have made acquaintances with all my neighbors and can safely say have made friends of them all."

Approved By Many

Tom Dowlen who worked for him longer than any other man says he knew the cattle business. Knew how to select stock, how to breed and how to develop his stock into better cattle. He never exploited the land, the cattle or the people. He knew agriculture and he spent the 22 years he lived in Randall County developing both to the highest standards they had yet reached in the Panhandle.

Mrs. Hutson Day writes, "I have fond memories of my life with John. He was one of the finest gentlemen I have ever known, and was well known all the way from Texas to New York, with many friends in Chicago, Denver and Kansas."

Mrs. Ed Harrell tells an interesting tale of Mr. Hutson. In 1891 L. G. Conner had built a hotel in Canyon which he had named The Victoria Hotel in honor of his wife, Victoria Conner. This hotel was completed July 4th, 1891. In the fall of 1896 Hutson was expecting friends to visit him and wanted to entertain them at the hotel. He wanted to serve drinks and the Conners would not allow him to serve drinks in the hotel, so Hutson asked them what they would take for the hotel and when they named their price he bought the hotel, entertained his friends serving liquor and continued running the hotel until it burned in 1908.

Mrs. Harrell says he ran a first class hotel. Heb Smith was the cook and in January of 1897 Mr. Hutson gave a party at the hotel to which he invited everyone in the county and Mrs. Harrell says she thinks everyone came. He served supper to everyone and had everything that was available at that time to eat. After the supper he gave a dance at the Court House. He had hired a fiddler, a guitar player, and a banjo player.

Hotel Experiences

Mrs. Harrell tells another tale about Ed. Trigg which illustrates the type of hotel Mr. Hutson ran. Trigg rode up to the hotel on his horse and went into the hotel to eat. Hutson wouldn't let him in the dining room without his coat on. Since Trigg didn't have a coat with him he had to go some where else to eat. Trigg often told this tale and laughed heartily at it.

Mrs. Harrell remembers Hutson as a very dignified man. An interesting man whom all enjoyed knowing. She says he contributed much to the development of this country. This seems to be the opinion of all who knew him.

Hutson Entertains Press

John Hutson played a prominent part in the first press convention held in Amarillo in 1894, two years after J. R. Gaut, pioneer Canyon and Amarillo newspaper publisher, established the Canyon City Searchlight.

There were three papers in Amarillo but they were always fighting and could not get together even to entertain visitors. One day during the convention J. R. Gaut met John Hutson; Hutson asked Gaut how the meeting was going and Gaut told him the trouble they were having.

Hutson invited the newspaper men to Canyon for a barbecue. He and his men butchered and barbecued a fat steer and the last day of the convention was held in Canyon. When the delegates got home their newspaper accounts of the convention did not mention Amarillo but confined their accounts to the wonderful hospitality of the Canyon people and particularly John Hutson.

On Feb. 2nd, 1909, Mr. Hutson married Mrs. Katherin Gamel, a widow with three children. She was the daughter of ex-Senator Hewins of Kansas and she had named one son Hewins Gamel for her father. Her son, Clayton Gamel, was killed in the first World War and his name is on the memorial erected on the Canyon Court House lawn to those who gave their lives for the defense of their country. Mr. Hutson left all his property to his wife at his death and she continued managing the estate for a few years but eventually sold most of the property and moved to California. She is at present living at Long Beach, California.

Past Like A Secret

Little is known of his life in England before he came to this country. His wife states he was very mysterious in regard to his life in England. She knows he was born and reared in Herefordshire, England. Herefordshire is noted for its horses, cattle, and sheep, and since the Hereford breed of beef cattle originated in England in the district which includes the county of Herefordshire it must have been here he acquired his knowledge of breeding his fine Hereford cattle.

Mr. Hutson died suddenly at the Amarillo Hotel Jan. 14, 1911, of a heart attack. He was 61 years old at the time of his death. Tom Dowlen states he had never known him to be sick a day in his life. Mr. Hutson drove by Tom's place on his way to the hotel to see some horses Tom had at pasture for him and when he left told Tom, "If I don't come back I want you to have those horses."

Although Mr. Hutson objected to the founding of Canyon, to the organization of Randall County and to the settlers coming, it was only because he saw it would mean the breaking up of the T-Anchor Ranch. As soon, however, as he saw the breaking up of the ranch was inevitable he changed his course and aided in every way in the building of the town of Canyon.

Encouraged Land Owners

At first as the country was opened up for filing on the land he would fire any of his cow-men who filed on land, later when he saw he would be unable to stop the flow of settlers he helped his cow-hands file on land and began buying land himself. He bought his land mostly along the creeks, buying this land for $3.50 per acre and on Dec. 30, 1890, wrote that he had control of nearly all the water on both creeks.

On Sept. 2, 1890, he wrote: "Settlers are coming in fast and within a year most of the School land will be filed on. They are a good class, not fencing much of their land but appear to be speculating on a Big Boom next Spring.

It was sad to watch the T-Anchor being gradually crowded out of existence, sad to watch John Hutson struggle against his inevitable defeat, for it had been the policy of the T-Anchor to lease, not to buy their land and the settlers had filed on the land right under the herd. But you glory in the man as he turns immediately to the new order and begins the development of his fine herd of Herefords.

With the open range it was impossible to build up the herds by introduction of graded stock. Now using the very fence he had fought, John Hutson built up his herd of registered Herefords. John Hutson believed in this country. A new economic era had come and Hutson was able to adjust himself to the new way.

His death was a loss to his many friends, the cattle industry and the county of Randall.

Methodist Center Wins High Honor

National recognition as a Standard Wesley Foundation has been given to the Methodist student group of WTSC, according to information received from the General Board of Education of the Methodist Church.

Rev. J. T. Pickens, director of the Foundation at WT, said that Wesley Foundations of the nation have been studied by a Commission on Standards of the General Board of Education. The Commission's approval of Wesley Foundations is based on the following scale of evaluation:

Training and qualifications of personnel; functioning of student program of activities; financial set-up — student pledges, appropriations from local church, etc.; facilities; organization of student government; relationship to Methodist Student Movements of the state and nation, World Student Christian Federation.

There are three classifications of Wesley Foundations: Approved Wesley Foundations, Conditionally Approved Wesley Foundations, and other Methodist student groups.

Using these classifications and the scale of evaluation, the Commission gave the Approved Wesley Foundation rating to 80 groups in the nation.

Defense Zones Are Established

At a luncheon meeting of the Civil Defense Committee Thursday at the Chuck Wagon Cafe, it was decided to zone Canyon with only two wardens, one west of the court house and one east. Each of these wardens will be free to select as many helpers as he desires. Tentatively selected were Lonnie Byars and Delbert Lowes to serve in that capacity.

Also discussed was the rescue and search work in the event Canyon should be struck by a tornado. One man will be in charge of channeling the work. Truitt Hull gave a report to the committee on the subject. He explained localities in which tornadoes were common and pointed out that Canyon is located in a section where tornadoes may strike any time during the year, particularly May and June.

Mr. Hull explained the pathway of a tornado is usually short, as a general rule no more than 50 miles long. Tornadoes in this area travel from southwest to northeast at a speed of from 10 to 50 miles per hour. Tornado winds have been known to attain a velocity of 500 miles per hour.

The speaker said wind and hail usually precede or follow a tornado. In addition, the roar of the storm can be heard as far away as 25 miles.

Seven committeemen attending the luncheon were Bill Sternenberg, Jack Jennings, A. L. Walsh, Alvin McDonald, Bud Parker, Truitt Hull, and Lawrence Hunnicutt. A meeting was scheduled for the June 7 at 7:30 p. m.

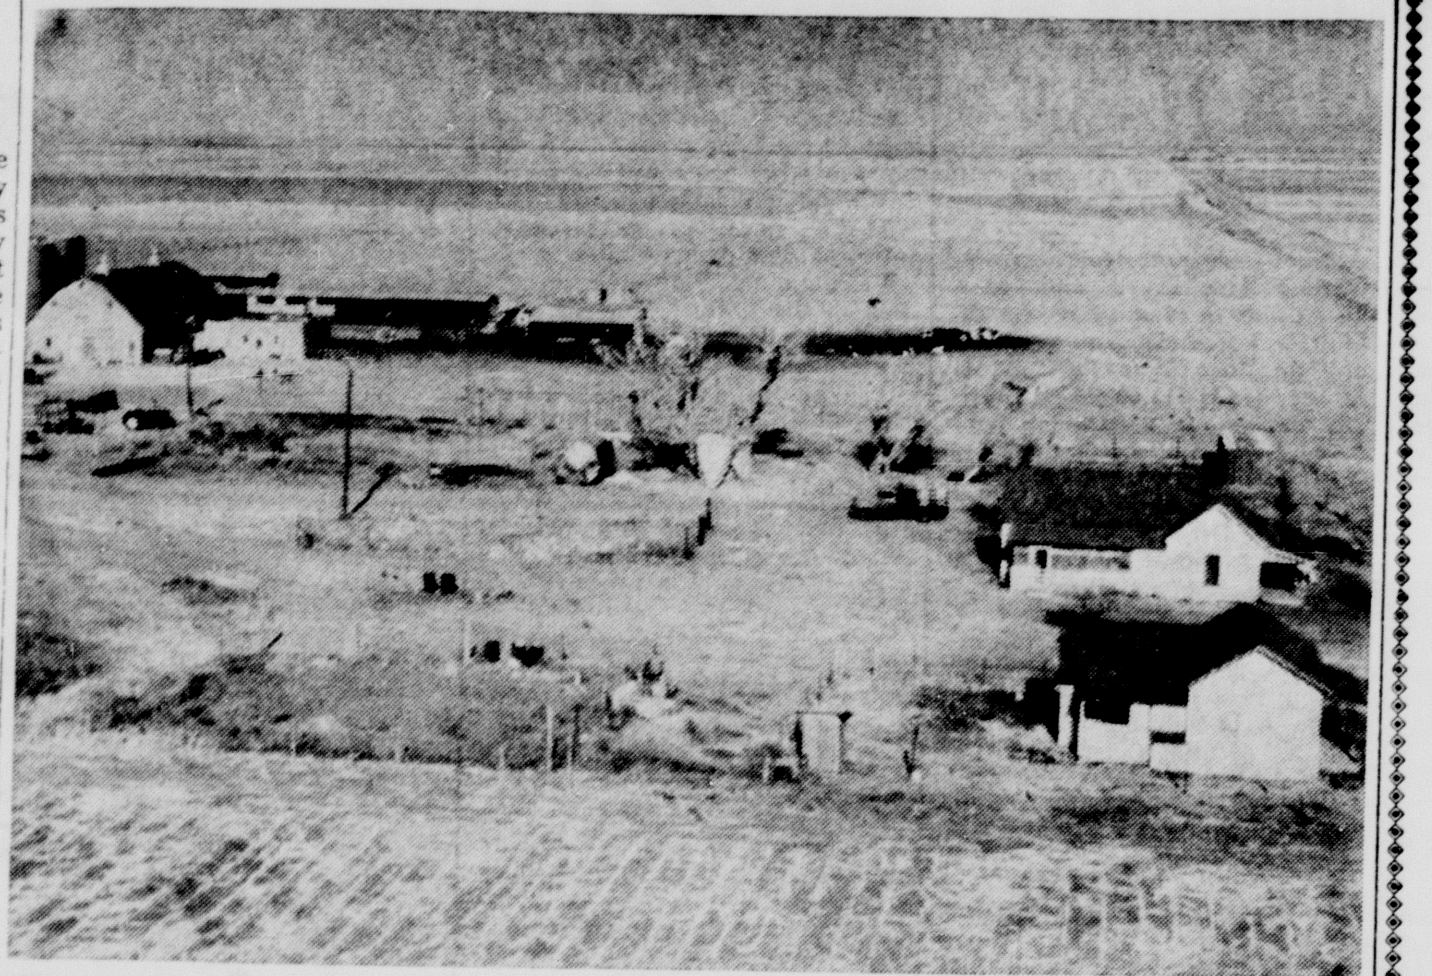
Who Is Owner of "The Mystery Farm" of This Week?



Do you know who's who on the farms in the locality of Canyon? Each week The Canyon News runs an aerial photo of a farm or ranch house. Each week the owner is asked to come to The News office and identify his place and get a free photo. Often friends see and identify the place pictured in the paper before the owners do. Sometimes they have the special thrill of letting the owner know about his farm or ranch's picture being in the paper. Take a good look, do you know whose place this is?

SCHOOL LUNCHES

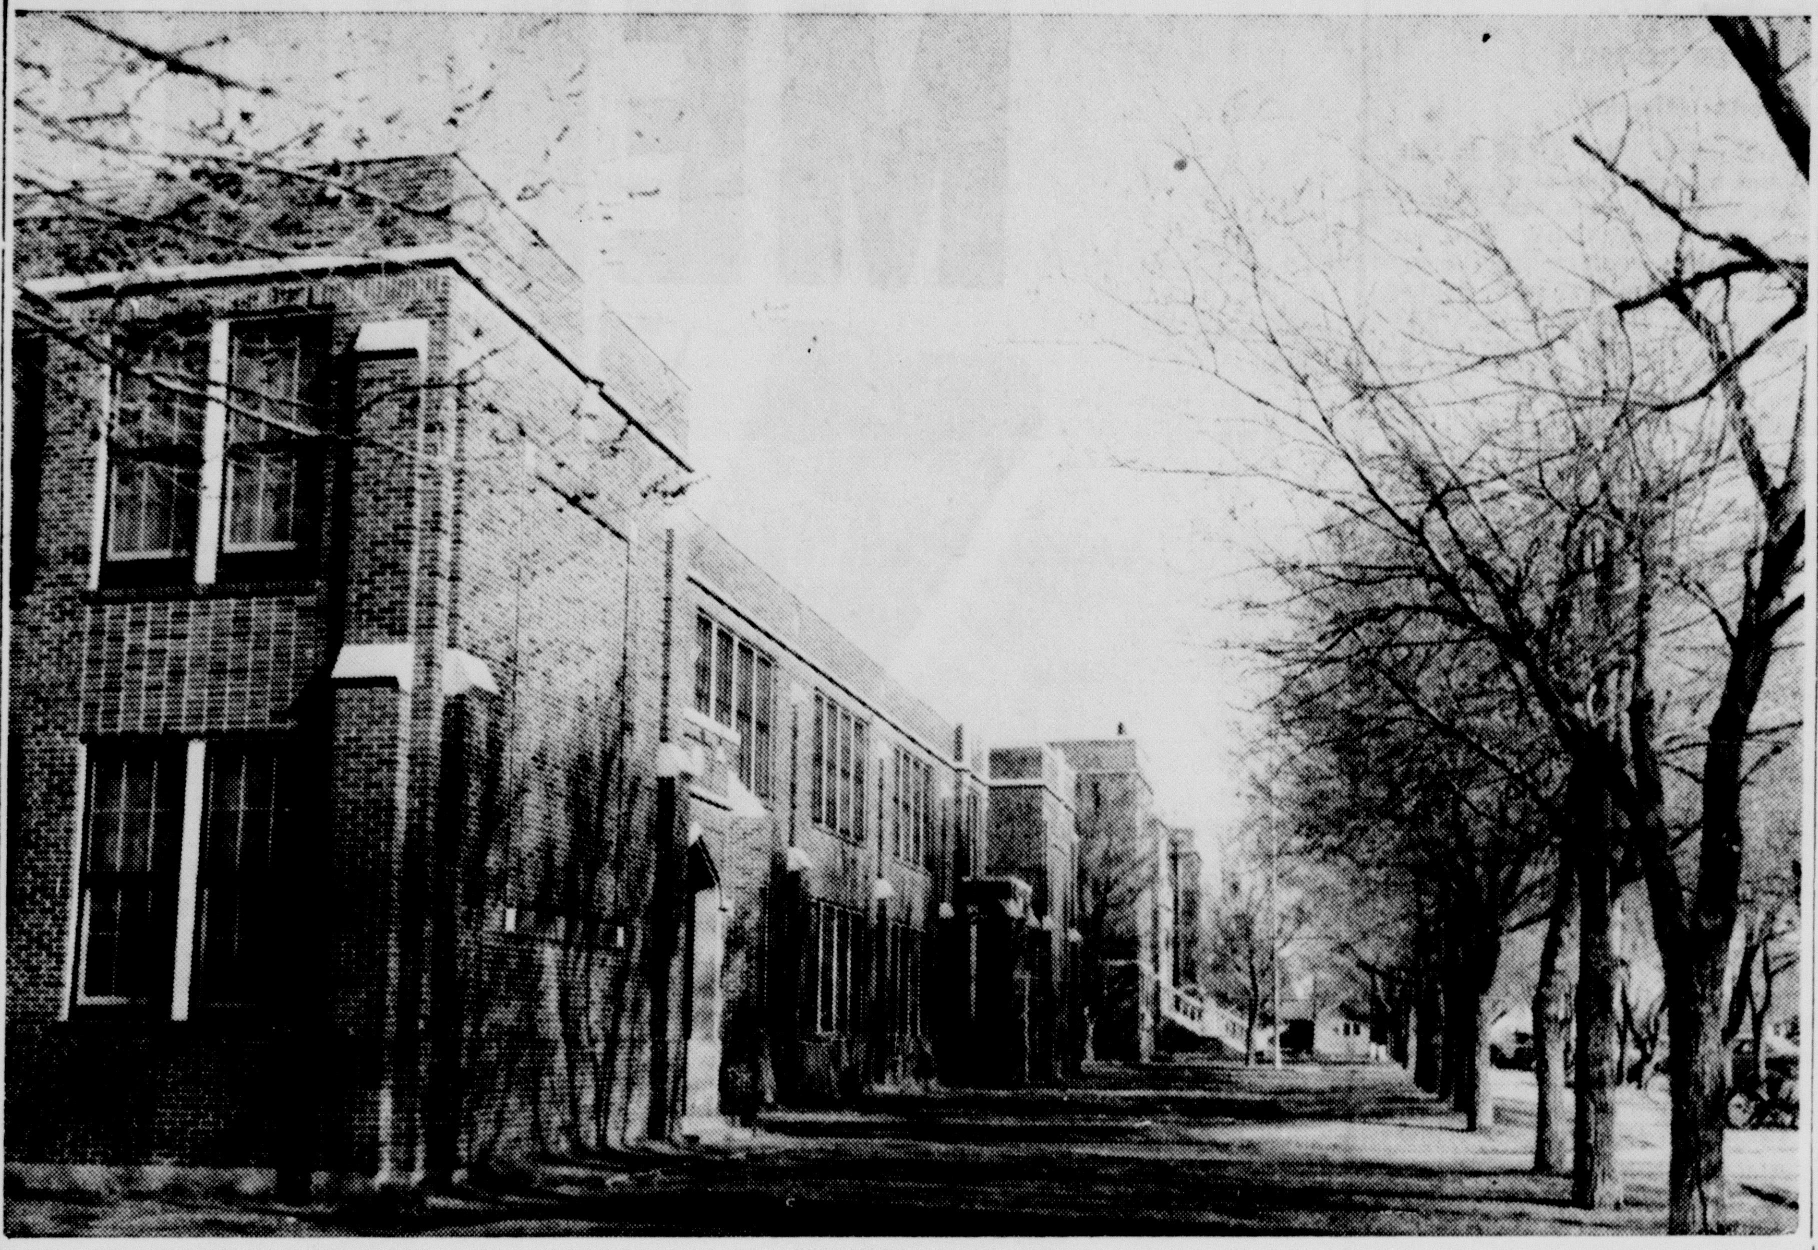
Here Is Where School Kids Get Their Training for the Battles of Life



An unusual picture of the school buildings in the west end of town was taken before the trees were topped, ready for the spring months. The first building is the grade school, with the high school building at the extreme end. Both buildings were erected 27 years ago but are in good state of repair. The cafeteria stands between the two buildings. The shops, band building, and garage is at the rear of the two buildings. At the present time the trustees have before them the necessity of building an additional school building to take care of the children who will be released from the campus of West Texas State on Sept. 1, 1955, by order of the Board of Regents.

NEWS LETTER

From Congressman WALTER ROGERS

of the 18th Congressional District

Food, Fiber, Fuel and Firepower

You will hear and read much in the next few months about economies, proposed economies, budget balancing, tax reduction, the elimination of waste and graft, and other incidental items. It presently appears from the recent announcements of congressional leaders that the proposals to balance the budget and reduce taxes will be confined to talk for about two years. These announcements are confirmed by the action that is being taken by Congress on the appropriations bills.

These bills are coming to the House Floor and sailing through after relatively short debate and with too little time for the entire House membership to study them. Most of them still provide for a substantial portion of the services that the federal government has been called upon to perform in the last two decades, the big cuts being in the construction and not the administrative field.

A good example is the appropriations bill for the Department of Interior, which includes the Bureau of Reclamation. The Department of Interior is the caretaker of the real property of the Government and has the responsibility of developing the natural resources.

The Appropriations Committee slashed 202 million dollars off the budget estimate of 607 million dollars. 98 million dollars out of the 200 million dollar cut came out of the Bureau of Reclamation funds. 90 million dollars of the 98 million dollar cut represented a reduction in construction, rehabilitation, and matters incident thereto. General administrative expenses were reduced one million dollars.

The nature of this cut simply means that there will be a sharp curtailment in maintenance, operation, and rehabilitation of existing facilities in this country and a sharp curtailment in the development of our natural resources.

At the same time, the taxpayers of this country are being asked to contribute approximately six billion dollars in foreign aid. Much of this money will be used for the development of natural resources in the countries to which it is sent. Some may take issue with me on this point and say that the dollars are not used directly for that purpose. Such a statement would be true, but it is only theoretical.

What happens is this: The recipients of foreign aid in many instances use their own funds, called counterpart funds, to develop their natural resources. They use the funds furnished by this country for the purposes for which they would have had to use their own funds had this country not sent the foreign aid.

It is sort of a merry-go-round. No one objects to helping other countries who are our allies. However, I cannot reconcile the development of the natural resources in other countries at the expense of permitting ours to go unattended. Many of these foreign countries are under a continuing communist threat. Should any of them capitulate, we know that the assets we have provided for those countries would not only be lost to us, but would be used against us.

The cold hard facts that we must face are simply these. The survival of this country from a material standpoint is going to depend upon food, fiber, fuel and firepower. This means that agriculture, the development of our natural resources, and the strengthening of our defenses should be among our top level considerations. The fat should be cut from all of these, but the muscles should not be damaged.

Subsidies

I expect to introduce a resolution within the next few days requesting a full investigation and a definite earmarking of the subsidies enjoyed at the expense of the American taxpayer. One of the most difficult problems at present is to find out the exact amount of subsidies being paid, who gets them, and why.

It is high time that the American taxpayer had this information boiled down to a dollar and cent standpoint. It can then be determined which are justified and which should be reduced or abolished. I feel that if definite and concrete information can be gathered together on this subject, tremendous savings can be effected.

ARMS SPENDING

If the plans of the Eisenhower Administration are approved by Congress, new orders for military goods may come slower and smaller next year, but they will come steadily for an indefinite number of years, assuring a prop of Government spending under the industrial economy. Actual spending may increase in the next few months, instead of declining as some business men had feared because deliveries are coming faster than usual.

Craftmanship Of The Red Man Shown In Display At Museum

If you intend to take up basket weaving in the near future - - or even if you're just going to spend the rest of your life combing beaches - - there is a display of basketry now at the museum that should be worth your while.

More than 150 intricately designed, complexly woven Indian baskets were whipped up into a display last week, and the material used in this art consists of everything from porcupine quills to feathers, and, oh yes, straw.

Jack T. Hughes, curator of paleontology, says that there were about three fundamental techniques used in the making of baskets, twilling, coiling, and twining.

Although the display represents many different tribes, Mr. Hughes says that essentially it is parts of the country that are significant. There are baskets from the Pacific Coast (the Northwest), the Southwest and the Southeast.

Some of the tribes represented are the Hupa, Choctaw, Apache, Navajo, Hopi, Walapai, Paiute, Pima, Poma, and Tlingit.

Mr. Hughes says that the Hupa and the Poma are probably the most skilled craftsmen in all the groups.

Among some other interesting items is a deal that looks almost like a plate and is called a gambling tray. Mr. Hughes says that a dice-like game was played with these trays. It seems that all Indians were big gamblers, and were always eager to gamble their squaw, wampum, and horse, in that order.

But, seriously, the Indian was a true artist. The modern conception about "savages" and "warriors" is just another false idea.

The Indian had a patience that the modern man will never achieve. The complexity and craftsmanship that went into the make-up of some of those baskets is nothing short of remarkable.

A few of the baskets are woven so tightly as to be water proof, and the complicated designs executed by the Indians in their art is something that the modern white man can't even understand, much less duplicate, because the red man possessed a quality that we will never have—patience.

The current display at the museum consists mainly of two collections, that of Susan J. Allen, and Anna W. Dove.

BOYCE HOUSE
Gives You Texas

William Jennings Bryan was famous for his oratory. But he had another gift: the ability to relax. When he was making his first race for president, he traveled by special train and spoke 20 times or more a day. He would speak until the train was pulling out, then go to his seat and at once drop into a nap. As the next town came in sight, someone would awaken him and he would go to the rear platform, make another speech, come back and take another nap. These intervals of rest—like the one-minute pause between rounds in a prize-fight—gave him the strength to stand up under a man-killing schedule.

In these days of strain and worry and uncertainty, we should learn to relax. When the bow is not in use, the archer unstrings it. When the hunting dog is not on a hunt, he is under the shade of the house, asleep. Of course, the thing can be overdone: look at Rip Van Winkle!

A mile from the capitol of the Texas Republic in Austin, Indians massacreed a number a settlers.

A Civil War leader, General Lytle, in his tent one night wrote the poem about Anthony and Cleopatra which begins, "I am dying, Egypt, dying"—and next day was himself killed in battle.

Had the battle been fought the day before, America would never have known this popular poem. How many artists, inventors and authors have been slain before they could make their contribution to the world!

When a restaurant has a concoction that no one would eat on its appearance and merits, the chef gives it a name such as "health salad" or "American salad."

Thomas Carlyle, the great Scotch historian and philosopher, is quoted by Champ Clark as having said, "Humor has justly been regarded as the first perfection of poetic genius." And now let's see the highbrow critics who ignored certain books of Texas humor laugh that one off.

It has been said that the 10 most musical words in the English language are dawn, hush, lullaby, luminous, chimes, tranquil, golden, murmuring, mist, and melody.

Contamination of Water Supply Was Discussed Tuesday

Bill Longbine, W. T. graduate on Monday, discussed the water supply of Canyon at the Rotary luncheon Tuesday, and contamination which was first discovered about three years ago.

Water has been a problem in all parts of Texas, and the people of Canyon have always had a just pride in our water supply, stated Mr. Longbine.

The new sewer system should greatly reduce flies in Canyon.

The speaker had made about 100 tests of water in Canyon, finding that the supply in four of the five wells were slightly contaminated. The source has never been located. There is no adequate map of water lines in Canyon and it is known there are many dead-end water lines. It is possible that water lines and sewer lines were installed at an early date in the same ditch near to each other, and both have small leaks.

A chlorine mixer was installed in 1951. There is not enough of the chemical to detect in the water.

According to the U. S. Health Department, the Canyon water is relatively hard, rather than being soft as most people think.

A majority of the towns in the Southwest have the same water trouble as Canyon because of contamination. It is noted that the presence of migratory birds go hand in hand with contamination.

The use of fogging machine in Canyon has kept down the flies. Keeping livestock in Canyon and stray dogs have added to the dangers of contamination.

Visitors were: Rev. Millard Murphy of Tucumcari; E. C. Wagner, Vern Geusemer, A. J. Folley, J. E. Bowman, Bill Defee, Irving Tolzien, all of Amarillo, were visitors.

What Happens Now?

Seniors, what happens now?

The big day has finally arrived, and the farewell assembly for seniors is being formulated. In a few short days you will be leaving CHS forever.

School has played such a major part in the role of your lives for such a long period of time. For 12 years! But all things must end, so what comes next?

Perhaps some of you will just start drifting by from day to day without any real plans for the future. If you do not plan to enter college, then what are you going to do?

If you have a definite idea for using the time spent in college, then that is the best thing that a graduate should start thinking about. More and more education is needed for the ever progressing, scientific world.

Those who have the most education are usually those who will hold the better jobs and bring in higher wages. Some opportune fields needing more workers include engineering, teaching, law, business administration, agriculture, home economics, interior decorating, and many others.

However, if you do not have a definite goal for yourself, those four years in college would be wasted. If that is the situation, you could attend a business college or take a correspondence course and gain a higher education in that manner.

Most of the boys will enter some branch of the service, and here also higher education is offered. Also, there is the great opportunity to travel and gain knowledge in that way.

Whatever the circumstance, a graduating student should acquire more education. A high school diploma does not go as far today as it did some years ago.

Seniors

As another school year draws to a close there are many friends and classmates (all seniors) who will not be with us again. As they leave this school they complete another chapter of their lives. This chapter is their high school life.

They have completed this chapter because they have gained the knowledge and education offered in high school. The next chapter of life for these graduating seniors will vary greatly because some will continue in their education, others establish businesses, some get married, and the others will go into the armed services.

When the seniors leave, they are going to leave an unfinished task for the future seniors to complete. The aim of the future seniors should not be to do the job better than the graduating seniors, but to do the job as well.

Purpose of high school classes is not to see which class can outdo the other class, or which class is the best, but to teach and learn friendship, loyalty, courage, service, knowledge, truth, and honor. Every senior should graduate with these principles in mind.

After the seniors leave, it is up to the juniors, sophomores, and freshmen to carry on the traditions and live up to the standards that the fellow seniors have set for CHS, and it is now up to the graduating seniors to carry on and promote the idea of democracy in the years to come.

Senior's Last Words

I only ask that when I die,
You carry me back to Canyon High.
Lay my biology book on my chest,
Tell Mr. Murry I did my best.
Lay my history book at my feet,
Tell Mrs. Sanders I suffered defeat.

Stack my homemaking books in my tomb,
Tell Mrs. Long I knew I was doomed.
Put my shorthand book in my hand,
Tell Mrs. Bowes I'm in a fairer land.
Place my geometry beneath my brow,
Tell Mrs. Knott it's all over now.

Dust off my journalism book now and then,
Tell Miss Payne I couldn't win.
Lay my library book over my heart,
Tell Mrs. Gilmore we'll never part.

Lay my algebra by my side,
Tell Mr. Christy I'm glad I died.
Lay "Vanity Fair" at my head,
Tell Mrs. Simms that's why I'm dead.

One Joy-ner-full day, ole' Cal sneaked up on a group of graduating seniors who were all gathered together in a big Huddle-ston to discuss the wonderful times they had had through the past years. One Gay-ler student raised his voice to shout, "Hey, remember that time in the Middle-ton of the Black night when we all put on those Hoods and went down to the old Pond and set off those fire works?" Another Rose up and yelled "Boy, do I! Why, everybody in town Cundiff killed us. It scared 'um so they all can a-runnin' out of their houses as White as Sheets!"

"Yeah, but that wasn't Wortham anything compared to the time we all ran that old Hick out of town only to find out that it was Miller dressed in disguise. I suppose we should have sent him our Weigards."

"My My-ers, we shore have been mischievous in our days. Remember the day we all played hooky and set up that Boothe by the road. We were awfully Green at salesmanship but by burning flares in the middle of the highway, we stopped all the cars and wouldn't let 'um go 'til they bought a pound of Bruce Shelnutts. Boyd we ever get out of there when we saw the Marshall coming! Shoot! I wanted to stick around and make some Morton money but you know the love of money is the Root of all evil!"

"Say, do you remember the time when we all went to that swanky cafe? Boy, we ordered the most Cunning-ham and those Newberries were just out of this world. Then we made a big mess and Dickerson, the waiter, got after us with a meat Cleavinger.

A hot game of poker started and somebody yelled, "Pruett your money down. There's going to be a Quillen if I catch anybody cheating too!" Everybody lost all their Jennings while Hamblen and due to circumstances not to be told, a big fight started and a guy named Hermesmeyer-ed another guy all over the pavement and got him all Dawdy.

A cop came and Bolton-ed them in jail and someone had to pay a Bonds to get them out. I felt rather Weaver-ed and almost wished I'd never been Bourn. We were just about to send for a Reece because Dawson, the jailor, had lost McKee. Col-well, everything turned out just fine after we Sanders-ed the lock in to."

Someone else spoke up to say, "Do you'll recall the time we went out to McDonald's farm down in the Gleen to see John's-son and Thomp's-son. As we stopped to talk, they told us of a new black-Smith shop down the road where they sold McKinney shoes that would fit extra long boy's feet. After practically being insulted, Davis, the chauffeur, drove on."

Another replied, "Yes, I remember that, but what about the time we all went fishin' together. Wimberly caught a turtle. When he pulled it out right fast, he slapped McKay in the face, quite by accident of course, and we had to Pettit it so it would feel better. McCune had to go for a doctor—what a tragedy!"

Well, I Wimberly don't want to stop telling what all I heard those seniors discussing but I guess I Wil-liams.

It is just now Downing on me that we couldn't have had a better time at dear ole' Canyon High School this year—don't you agree with ole' Cal? We really Owens CHS for the best years of our lives.

This is Cactus Cal, the school rage, Simoning off for another year. Be good and don't do anything Cal wouldn't do.

Choir Sings Last Concert of Year

Drected by Miss Ada V. Clark, the third and fifth period girls' chorus, the boys' ensemble, and the mixed choir presented their final choral concert to CHS this year in an assembly program Friday, May 22.

The third period girls' chorus began the program singing "Jeanine" by Shilkret, "Sweet and Lovely" by Arnheim, Tobias, and Lemare, and "The Woman in the Shoe" by Brown.

Next came the boys' ensemble with "My Beautiful Lady" by Caryll, "Harbor Lights" by Kennedy and Williams. Following these numbers, the ensemble led the audience in "Falling in Love With Love" by Rodgers.

The third group on the program was the fifth period girls' chorus which sang "In the Still of the Night" by Porter, "Freddy and His Fiddle" by Wright and Forrest, and "Carolina Moon" by Burke.

Concluding the program the mixed choir sang "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes" by Kern, "Without a Song," by Youmans, "Clasp Yo Hands" by Gershwin, and last of all, "The Gandy Dancers' Ball" by Weston and Howard.

35 Students Make Plans To Enter WT

1953 graduates of Canyon High School will be represented in 12 of the nation's universities and colleges when school starts next fall.

Thirty-five members of the class intend to enroll at West Texas State College. That is more than 60% of those graduating this year. Other colleges represented and the number who will attend are as follows:

Texas Tech, 2; Northwestern University, 1; Texas University, 1; Abilene Christian College, 1; Baylor, 2; Draughns, 2; Amarillo Junior College, 2; Southwestern Bible College, 1; Wayland, 1; Mercy Hospital, 2; and still undecided, 7; and those not going, 4.

Ten of the 35 to attend WT will major in business administration. Students will also major in math, chemical and diesel engineering, speech, agriculture, English, home economics, physical education, music, social work, nurse's training, and there are a score undecided as to their major.

Several students are planning to attend our local school for one or two years and hen study in a larger college. Following their study here, they will receive training in Baylor and Texas University.

Some students won scholarships to attend college during either the summer or winter terms. Sarah Jane Colwell has been awarded a $100 scholarship sponsored by the Pi chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma, honorary teacher's sorority.

Joe Watson and Ralph Green will go to Chicago to study science and journalism, respectively, at Northwestern University. Also included in the scholarships are the three given by Taylor & Sons to West Texas State.

Sponsors Receive 'Thanks' of Class

To be a sponsor of any organization is a big job, but to sponsor a senior class—with all its activities—requires an untiring and patient person. That is the way this 1953 graduating class describes its sponsors, Mrs. Dan Sanders and Loyd Devin.

Without the efforts of such wonderful sponsors, the social and class activities of this senior class could not have been so highly successful. Every single job undertaken by the class was whole-heartedly supported and pushed by this pair of diligent working advisors.

The Hallowe'en Carnival—each senior social—the senior play—the still freshly remembered senior trip! No persons on earth could have more wanted each thing to be enjoyed by every member of the class and every detail minutely planned. And that is why we wanted you, Mr. Devin and Mrs. Sanders, for our last high school sponsors, because we knew you would back us—patiently and untiringly. And that, you have done well.

All we seniors can say is, as we prepare to say adieu, is "Thanks."

A simple word—but yet it has so much meaning. From the appreciative heart of each 1953 senior, we again say Thanks; it's been wonderful.

Sincerely,
The Senior Class

A Senior Speaks . .

As each senior reaches the climax to his high school career, he looks back to the many things that have made it the most wonderful time of his life. There are many things that a person cannot express on paper but will always remember.

I have overcome shyness and self-consciousness, and have been able to make many friends whom I love very much. One learns the need of understanding and sympathy, and I do not believe that there is a better place to learn them.

No person can be a part of any musical organization without learning to appreciate that wonderful art. Music joins the whole world in one united body for everyone loves it.

High school has prepared me to meet the challenge of the world before me. I have endeavored to study the courses that would prove beneficial to me in the future, and can truthfully say that if I do not succeed, it will not be anyone's fault but my own.

No person should expect to be happy if he cannot find a life work that he loves. I am truly grateful to those who have offered encouragement when I was tempted to give up, and urged me onward to the height which I have now reached. —Barbara Glanton

Senior Texans Brag Way Down South

Too excited to be sleepy, the senior class set out for a 1500 mile tour of South Texas, including Austin, Corpus Christi, San Marcos, New Braunfels and San Antonio last Wednesday morning at 12:01.

Between rest stops, singing, rain storms, and card games, the class rolled into Austin at 12 noon. A two-hour tour through the state capitol, including a visit to the senate and house of representatives chambers, the governor's office, vault, judiciary rooms, attorney's library, and state library, was the highlight of this city. Also the state university was visited.

The next night was spent in San Marcos. That night, most students attended a movie. The next morning the class saw the San Marcos river bed through glass bottom boats, and the Aquarena, a ballet theater under water, was visited.

Highlight of the visit to New Braunfels was a guided tour of the world-famous textile mill located in that city. Upon arrival to Corpus Christi that night, the group viewed the lapping coast of Corpus Christi Bay. Enthusiasm mounted and many students bathed in the brine at 6:30 Friday morning.

Waves of water didn't scare the sailors, however, and they set motor for a deep sea fishing expedition out in the bay. Few showed much fishing ability, but the fishermen devoured the scaly swimmers for lunch. A dip in the cold, salty water concluded that part of the trip.

Rose of San Antonio, the next rest stop! Before entering San Antonio, a tour of the San Jose Mission was taken. Finally the buses rolled into San Antonio. Activities for the first night was at Playland Park. After riding roller coaster, bump cars, farris wheel, bullet, and other things, the students returned to their cabins with headaches.

Still eager to swim, several students arose at 6:30 Saturday morning, for another swim in the pool at the courts where the girls stayed. After a quick dip before breakfast, a tour through Brakenridge Park and the zoo was taken.

In the afternoon, the group visited the Alamo, the governor's palace, and the Buck-horn Saloon. After returning to the cabins, they took a quick swim before going skating. It seemed as if everyone got tired of skating easy and so the rest of the night time was spent at Playland Park.

Finally, on Sunday morning the wondering seniors set out for Canyon. On the way home, the buses stopped and a road-side church service was held. At 10:30 Sunday night the Canyon High Senior Class returned, too sleepy to be excited.

'Kids Will Be Kids'

"Bang, bang, you're dead!" "Yeow, an' I'll hit you over the head with my ball!" Many were the childish and juvenile exclamations and acts, when the seniors celebrated "Kid Day" at Canyon High last week.

Baby clothes, juvenile dispositions, childish acts, and voices reigned Wednesday as the members of the senior class dressed and acted like kids to celebrate CHS's annual "Kids Day."

To start the day off, the children gathered in front of the school building before school started to play games, such as lunden-bridge and ring-around-a-rosie. When the kids finally entered their classrooms, they had to put away their water guns, candy, suckers, bubble gum, and other toys.

The little girls had to duck from class to class or else the noughty little boys would squirt them with water guns. All the children had to compare toys and see which one was the best, but naturally their own was.

During the noon hour, the senior kids parted long enough with their toys to play lunden-bridge and flying-dutch-man. While they were playing these games, the sponsor, Thomas L. Devin, took motion pictures of the group.

At 3:30, all the little kiddies returned home, pants and shirts, little dresses, and skirts and blouses all dirty and some wet from water guns.

Sponsors Challenge Senior Class; 'Honor Every Courtesy And Smile'

To the Members of the Class of '53:

Dear Friends:

Graduation is a time when students and teachers share deep feelings which are mingled emotions of gratitude, anticipation, and sadness. We look back to a year packed with living; to joy and sorrow; to a time of hard study, of good sportsmanship, and of striving toward a better practice of the democratic principles which are a part of our inheritance. We have had a good year together in Canyon High School.

I am deeply grateful that you gave to me the privilege of becoming a part of the class life of so fine a group of boys and girls—the seniors of the Class of 1953. I appreciate every help, every courtesy, and every welcoming smile which you have sent my way during the year.

Especially do I think you most sincerely for the hearty cooperation I have had from each one of you as it has been my duty and my pleasure to counsel with you as one of your sponsors.

The strength of mind and the sturdiness of character which I find among you convince me that you can look confidently forward to a future which will bring rich satisfaction to each of you, and a better, more abundant life to all our land.

And now may God
Protect you amid the perils of the sea,
Amid the dangers of battle in a far land;
Keep you sound in body, pure in heart,
Brave in spirits, ever loyal to your Redeemer
And to our Country.

Yours sincerely,
Mrs. Dan Sanders,
Senior Class Sponsor

To the Senior Class of 1953:

It is only a few days until you will be numbered among the many graduates of Canyon High School; an honor achieved by those who continued their quest for knowledge until they met the graduation requirements. You can remember those who once were members of your class but today, for various reasons, are not among you. Likewise, you will be counted as graduates because you accepted the challenge to learn more and you have succeeded.

As I sit at my desk, I recall with pleasure the day I walked into your class meeting in September of 1951 and received from you a warm welcome as one of your advisors. Time has traveled fast for me, because I have enjoyed working with you for the past two years.

Many of you were merely names to me on that first day, but as time rolled rapidly by you became personalities that planned, thought, worked, and played together as a class. Your successes brought me a feeling of pride in each of you.

As a class and as individuals, you have attained new heights in Canyon High School. There are many things that you can point to with pride; you have set new records of achievement in various phases of school life; you have found new joys in the comradeship with your fellow classmates and developed a deeper appreciation for the world about you.

Days crowded with activity will soon bring your senior year to a close, and I shall assemble with your many friends and relatives and be proud of you as you walk down the aisle, then across the stage to receive your High School Diploma. With that diploma in your hand and the will to succeed in your heart, may you face the world unafraid, determined to be a success.

With best wishes to each of you:
Thomas L. Devin

When the seniors leave Canyon High Thursday, May 28, they are going to leave many unfinished tasks for the future juniors to finish. The junior class of 1952-53 or the junior class of 1953-54 will not complete these tasks, but they will help.

The tasks to work with are numerous; staying in the secondary school system, being good sports in all athletics and other activities, and promoting education in all fields. The future juniors should not strive to outdo the past juniors, but to do equally well.

The athletic teams and musical organizations may win higher honors than the past teams, but one should always keep in mind there has to be a winner and a loser and you cannot always be the winner. If you win, take it in a humble way, if you lose, be a good sport.

Staying in the secondary school system and promoting education are based on the same fields. If one strives to promote education in all fields, the school will always remain among the secondary schools.

Present and future juniors, in the future years build Canyon High a school you will want to return to in future years and be proud of.

Graduation Thrills To Be Experienced

Looking back over the senior year of '53 spent in Canyon High School, we find that many memories are packed stolidly between the pages of a glorious scrapbook.

The first semester of the senior year was filled with the official malicious initiation of the devilish little freshmen, raising the class fund, and the like.

The first social of the year was a party given by the girls for the boys. This preceded the Thanksgiving holidays and a heavenly snow storm. Come midnight, New Year's Eve, the gay ole seniors were ringing in the new year right with tooting of horns, gay colored hats, and games.

Then came the exciting moments behind stage as the curtain was about to be pulled on "Finders Creepers," the senior play.

April 2nd, the seniors waltzed through a night of splendor filled with just what the Seniors of '53 were looking for—a Pot of Gold at the end of the Rainbow. The night of ectasy is never to be forgotten, juniors.

Time for the trip to Corpus Christi, San Antonio, and elsewhere was slowly drawing nigh and the seniors were anxiously waiting as they planned it.

Preceding the trip the seniors were treated royally with a Chuck Wagon Supper given by the Baptist Church, and an afternoon tea given by the third year homemaking girls.

The anticipated hayride of April 30 ended in a night of skating, eating, and singing. Then on May 12, at midnight, the seniors were roaring away on the memorable senture to South Texas.

May 20—Home again and preparing to be kids just once more before embarking upon a new life following graduation. May 22—Seniors swam and danced the night away at their last social gathering of the year.

Yes, many are the memories never to be forgotten by the seniors of their friends and fun at dear old Canyon High. But yet to come the greatest thrill—that of marching down the aisle in cap and gown and being handed that diploma. —Sarah Colwell.

Commencement Ends Tomorrow

Commencement exercises for the 1953 senior class will be held Thursday, May 28, at 8:15 p. m. in the West Texas Texas College Auditorium with Dr. Roy G. Boger as main speaker.

Rev. A. J. Pettit, pastor of the Assembly of God Church, will give the invocation and Principal James E. Miller will present the graduating class and announce the class honors. Presentation of diplomas will be made by Supt. Joe A. Gibson, assisted by W. R. Crow, president of the Canyon School Board. Joe F. Watson, minister of the Central Church of Christ, will offer the benediction.

Dr. Roy G. Boger is now professor of education and director of the West Texas State College Center in Amarillo. He holds the B.A. and M.A. degree from Southwestern University, and an honorary Doctor of Law degree from McMurry. He began teaching Latin and German at Lon Morris College, Jacksonville, Texas, and taught education and science at Clarendon College.

He was president of Lon Morris College and Weatherford College. He was dean at McMurry College and in 1941 he became executive secretary at SMU before coming to Amarillo in 1942. Dr. Boger likes to build interest in people in the evening instruction for adults.

The musical prelude and processional will be played by the Canyon High School Orchestra under the direction of Herman W. Demus.

Students Elect '54 Cheerleaders

Overweight Is Common Disease Due Overeating

Three common problems facing medicine today are overweight, headaches, and hardening of the arteries.

Overweight (or obesity) plagues an estimated 15,000,000 Americans. The chief cause—regardless of alibis—is that the person affected takes in more food than his body can spend in energy. Even if the "glands" are to blame, the patient usually overeats to make things worse. People should control their weight to keep from dying young and to avoid diseases of middle and later life, such as high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries, or kidney disease.

To reduce, the patient must give his wholehearted cooperation to the doctor. A diet is of little help unless it is followed. However, more liberal diets are recommended now than formerly, and the medically supervised diet often allows the patient more food than one he might draw up for himself. Reducing pills to curb the appetite may be considered helpful by the doctor.

Too, the physician can help the patient develop healthful attitudes toward eating and life in general so that he is not so badly tempted to overeat. The chief value of exercise is to keep the muscles in tone.

The causes of headache may be almost without number; however, one of the most common types is the "migraine" or "sick headache." Although the brain is not sensitive to pain, other structures inside or near the head are, for example, the blood vessels and nerves, the covering of the brain is called the "dura," the muscles of the scalp and neck, and the eyes, nose, or teeth. In migraine headache, it is believed that the blood vessels become swollen, twisted, or stretched, setting off the pain reaction.

The headache victim often is able to find relief through lying in a quiet, dark room with cold applied to the head. However, if headaches are frequent, he would be wise to see a doctor. Physical examination and treatment not only make life more bearable; they also may reveal serious trouble, such as a brain tumor, in time for the patient to be helped most.

Hardening of the arteries (arteriosclerosis), which usually isn't especially dangerous, may lead to trouble if deposits on the inside of blood vessels cut off the blood supply to an essential organ like the brain or heart. The danger of a blood vessel is slight unless syphilis or some other serious disease weakens the wall. Patients with hardening of the arteries often have trouble with their legs and feet; the slowed down circulation may lead to pain, ulcers, or gangrene.

Arteriosclerosis is considered a natural part of aging. However, it has been found to be present in infants and children and almost absent in some aged persons. Those who develop the condition early in life are likely to pass the trait on to their children. Hardening of the arteries often is associated with diabetes and high blood pressure.

Medical science can sometimes slow down the development of arteriosclerosis. However, much remains to be learned about its cause and treatment.

Warm Weather Brings Cases of Food Poisoning

The coming of warm weather brings a warning from Dr. Geo. W. Cox, State Health Officer, for all persons to be on the alert regarding food poisoning. Most cases investigated by the State Department of Health disclosed that improper food handling was responsible for the illness.

Food poisoning is commonly caused by bacteria in food. In general there are two types, food poisoning and food infection. Food poisoning is caused by bacteria in the food that produce a poison and usually the symptoms appear within a few hours. In food infection, the bacteria do not produce a poison, but attack the body. This takes longer so symptoms usually do not appear for 12 to 24 hours after eating.

In both kinds of illness the symptoms may be similar: nausea, vomiting, diarrhea, abdominal pain and fever may all occur. In food poisoning nausea and vomiting may predominate while in food infection diarrhea may be the prominent symptom.

As a prevention Dr. Cox suggests that all food be protected against flies and other pests. Refrigerate all perishable foods including meats, poultry and creamed filled pastries. Many outbreaks of food infection are caused by leaving food out of the refrigerator. Also, avoid handling food if you have a sore or an infection on your hands or if you are sick.

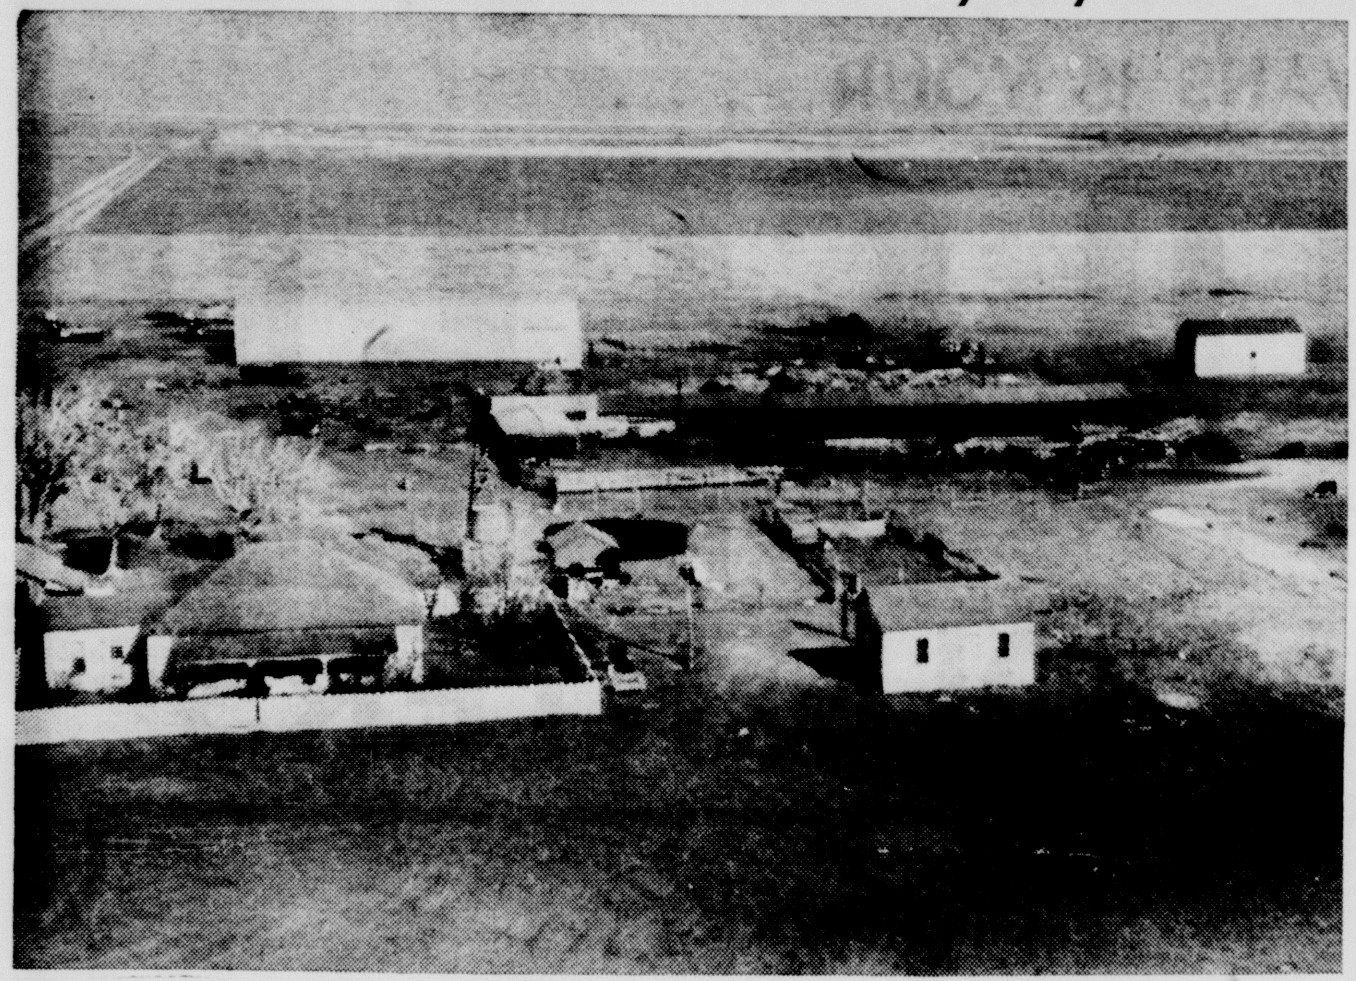
R. B. Elliott Owns Last Week's "Mystery Farm"



Our mystery farm of last week is probably one of the first places in the Panhandle to feel the touch of the white man's plow. It was the ranch headquarters for the old Bar X ranch. The Elliotts have been there for at least two generations. They have owned the place since 1927. R. B. Elliott practices crop rotation and other modern methods of tillage to keep the land productive.

Courtesies Honor Mrs. Dixon Davis On Eve of Retirement from Teaching

Mrs. Dixon Davis, who is retiring from the teaching profession at the close of the current school year, was honored at a 6 o'clock dinner Friday evening, May 15, by the Canyon Grade School faculty in the home of Mrs. Huvelle Brasher with Mrs. Brasher, Mrs. Walsh, and Mrs. Jones as special hostesses.

Seasonal floral decorations lent charm to the spacious entertaining area. The dining table was a thing of beauty with its cutwork linen cloth and its centerpiece of purple and orchid giant iris.

Those attending were Miss Elva Fronabarger, Mrs. T. W. Collins, Mrs. Mary Black, Mrs. Elloese Burgess, Mrs. Alma Perkins, Mrs. Lucille Davis, Mrs. Martha Goodman, Mrs. Zula Usery, Mrs. Lee Reeves, Mrs. Huvelle Brasher, Mrs. Jane Isabel Cousins, Mrs. Audrey Jones, Mrs. Hazel Walsh, Mrs. Mary Iverson, Mrs. Gladys Dixon, Mrs. Cortez Dowlen, and the honoree, Mrs. Dixon Davis.

The group gift, an exquisite table lamp, was presented to Mrs. Davis by Miss Fronabarger. A corsage of pink carnations from the special hostesses was presented to the honoree by Mrs. Brasher. Mrs. Goodman enhanced the pleasure of the group by an added entertainment feature — that of showing her collection of slide films.

Recently, on her birthday, Mrs. Davis' homeroom gave her a surprise party and presented her with a place setting of her china. She also received gifts of china from other rooms and individuals. This party was planned by her children and was given in Mrs. Walsh's room with Mrs. Walsh acting as cohostess.

The Hundley Circle of the Baptist Church honored her with a dinner and a gift on May 12 in the home of Mrs. Ruth Gidden with Mrs. Gidden and Mrs. Fay Johnson as hostesses.

At the April meeting of Canyon Parent-Teacher Association, Mrs. Davis was presented a life membership by that organization. The honor was bestowed by Mrs. T. W. Collins. Mrs. Beulah Miller was the eulogist.

On May 9th, Delta Kappa Gamma, an honorary society of teachers, of which Mrs. Davis is a member, presented her several pieces of her china. Mrs. A. B. Holt made the presentation speech during which she used the following poem composed for the occasion by a teacher friend:

"Davis, Davis, that's the name
Dixon Davis, still the same —
Faithful, understanding, true,
Our Mrs. Davis, that is you.
Take this token of our love
Use it, prove below, above,
Laden with good wishes bright.
Delta Kappa Gamma, friend,
To you this lasting symbol send.
It proclaims affection deep
Ever in your heart to keep."

Martha Dixon Davis was a small girl when she came to Canyon and it was a small town that she came to. Her father, the late Judge Lair, and his family came here during the pioneering days, sharing the experiences of others who were here at that time for they took an active part in the social, political, educational, and religious life of the community.

Outside of the 12 years of teaching in the rural schools of Randall County and Swisher County, her school life has been spent in Canyon schools, as student through the grades and high school, and as a teacher in the grades.

She received a first grade certificate by state examinatoin in the spring of her last year in high school; the summer following she taught a summer school at Fairview. (She went back 20 years later and taught the children of her first pupils). Then the next year she taught an overflow room in the Canyon school for the second semester.

Realizing that if she were to have any success as a teacher she would need some preparation, she attended the normal school at Denton for two years. She came home with a permanent certificate and big plans for teaching in the fall. Obstacles arose — first she was needed at home and then she became interested in a certain young man, John Davis, by name, who had come to live with his uncle, J. M. Harder, pastor of the Baptist Church.

All teaching plans were laid aside but in the back of her head was still the dream and desire to teach; then, too, her conscience was bothered about the pledge signed back there in Denton—a promise to teach a year for every year spent as a student in that institution.

Then came World War I. There was a great need for teachers. Here was the chance to keep the pledge, do her bit to help, and at the same time realize her ambition. It was to have been for two years but there was no stopping place.

After 12 years in the rural schools, it was back to Canyon in 1930 with 23 years of consecutive teaching.

Mrs. Davis' contributions to education have been many. Her record as a teacher of mathematics and science is most superior; however, that is not the only field in which she has excelled. Evidently she has believed that every teacher should be a teacher of English, for she has been quite successful in obtaining good oral and written English in all her classes. Her ability to write poetry and descriptive prose has made her useful to pupils and faculty alike.

A good teacher knows that many spiritual values come to a child from successful achievement in school work. Mrs. Davis has been zealous in providing opportunities for such achievement. She has been skilled in understanding the child's needs and in furnishing remedial work. Also, she has been skilled in discovering and in developing the potential talents and abilities of her pupils. One student who returned for a visit after many years, said to the principal, " want to see Mrs. Davis. Is she still here? She taught me many things I didn't particularly want to learn at the time, and probably didn't appreciate having to learn, but I know now that many of those experiences she gave me then will be lifelong sources of strength to me."

Mrs. Davis tried to develop the spirit within the child into something finer and finer as the child grew. A writer once said, "The heart of the spiritual task—is the organization and maintenance of a community that makes possible a good life for all its various members." Mrs. Davis has given her best efforts and influence to the building of such a community. She may now enter into her retirement with satisfaction and serenity, secure in the knowledge that she is loved and appreciated, that she has made a most worthwhile contribution to the education of our children, and that she leaves a task well done.

R. B. Elliott Owns "Mystery Farm" Run Last Week

The photo of last week's mystery farm was that of R. B. Elliott, about 18 miles southeast of Canyon. Mrs. Elliott made the identification Monday and picked up her free photo.

The Elliotts have been on the farm about 25 years. The farm is one of the oldest in this part of the country. It was headquarters for the old Bar X Ranch many years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott have been married 29 years. They have four children, one girl and three boys. Their oldest, Shirley, is now Mrs. Payne and lives in Amarillo. Ross and Ben, their twin boys, are 16 years of age and their youngest is Stan, a boy of 14.

Dry land farming is practiced on the place and their favorite cattle are the Whiteface and favorite crop is wheat. The entire holding of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott consists of more than six sections. There are about three sections on the place shown in the photograph.

Mr. Elliott practices rotation of crops on his farming land. For supplemental cattle feed he uses cottonseed cake and cottonseed meal.

Mrs. Elliott says she doesn't remember just how long they have been taking The Canyon News but they started a long time ago. Their favorite portion of the paper is the news on the front page.

The play, which is currently being given and will run through Thursday evening, is "The Curious Savage," by John Patrick. Patrick is also the author of "The Willow and I," another production which was directed by Mrs. Moore at the ALT.

One of the performers in "The Curious Savage" is L. R. Reeves, a former member of the Palo Duro Players, who is now superintendent of schools at Mobeetie. Adults To Be Included in Year Round Program of CHS Homemaking Dept.

A year-round homemaking program will be carried out by the homemaking department in the Canyon High School under the direction of Mrs. Long, regular teacher in the department. This will include time for adult classes and help further the work with the high school students.

Adult workshops which have been requested to date are upholstering and clothing. The classes will necessarily have to be kept small, ten if possible, because of the space and equipment available. If a larger number signs, then extra classes will be organized.

To those interested in upholstering, each class member will bring a piece of furniture to work on. In class, old materials will be removed to the frame, springs replaced and tied, according to need, padding will be replaced, and the whole muslin covered and upholstering material then added. Wooden trim will be refinished before the upholstering process is started.

Clothing classes may include tailoring, simple construction, children's clothing, use of attachments; or it may be that each class will desire to work on one problem only.

Not all of Mrs. Long's time can be devoted to adult work as 55 high school homemaking students have signed for summer projects. They have requested work on leather and metal. Adults interested in these may attend. High school students may enroll in adult classes.

All women interested in the upholstering classes are asked to meet in the high school homemaking department Wednesday, June 3, at 2 p. m. for organization and making definite plans as to meeting time and securing lists of materials needed. If for some reason anyone interested cannot attend this meeting, call the high school principal's office and leave name and telephone number.

Those interested in the clothing classes are asked to meet at the homemaking department at the high school Wednesday, June 3, at 3 p. m. for class organization.

There will be no charge for any of these workshops.

The homemaking laboratory will be open each Friday during the summer months from 9:30 a. m. until 3:30 p. m. so that the equipment, machines, and attachments may be used by those who desire to use them.

Artificial wreaths, cut flowers, pot plants, shrubbery, plants for Memorial Day. Stevens Floral.

Patterned fabrics lead the summer fashion parade.

Awards Assembly Climaxes Year's Activities, Student Achievements

Canyon High School's traditional awards assembly, the climax to a year's work filled with many honors and activities was held in the high school auditorium last Friday morning. Spanish, journalism, science, English, and band awards were given students who won these honors.

Laura Smith and Barry Clark, second year Spanish students, were presented with awards signifying an achievement of good understanding of this language. Tom Wilbanks received the Spanish I award for the same achievements.

Journalism's special service award went to Frances Pennington, because of her all-around dependability in this field. Edwina Caskey received the journalism writing ability award.

A $100 journalism scholarship, offered by The Eagle's Tale, was given to Ralph Green, because of his high scholastic and journalistic ability. This is the initial award of this type, and will be paid directly to the chosen college or university. Ralph also received the National Scholastic Press Association Journeyman's Award, an honor in reward of two year's service to the school paper.

Artists Jerry Martin, Hubert Green, Don Duncan, and La Rue Davis; and craftsmen Carlene Morton, Ralph Green, Don Hicks, Raymond Haddock, and Harold Root were recognized for artistic ability in the use of design and materials. La Rue recently won honorable mention in the state fire-prevention poster contest, and Don won first place in the poppy poster contest.

Freshmen Kathy Truax, Diane Prichard, Tom Wilbanks, and Virgin Leake; sophomores June Davis, Peggy Sheets, Lucy Hollabaugh, and Foster Parker; juniors, Jerry Martin, Ted Briggs, and Nora Dell Ruthart, and seniors, Laura Smith and Carol Rose were presented with English awards for the highest average in each class.

Science student Dorothy Cleavinger was the receiver of the annual Bausch-Laume Science Award. Dorothy is the senior with the highest average in all science courses. Joe Watson was recognized because of the scholarship recently won by him to Northwestern University.

Third place winner in solo competition at the annual Interscholastic League Band Contests were recognized, Joe Dickerson, Norris Samuelson and Don Wells. Certificates for second place winners, La Rue Davis, Tom Wilbanks, Harold Newberry, Dorothy Cleavinger, and Kathy Truax, were presented.

The school was presented with the second place certificates of the entire band's achievements in concert, sight-reading, and marching contests; also the second place twirling and woodwind ensemble certificates. Senior band members were recognized as the recipients of awards in the form of letter jackets, which the band purchases every year.

First place soloists, Dorothy Cleavinger, Frances Cunningham, and Ralph Green, were given medals for this achievement.

1953 Boys' State winners, Arlen Ruthart and Charles Miller, and Red Cross camp winners, Joe Dickerson and Peggy Sheets, were announced by J. E. Miller, principal of the high school.

Piano contest students Barbara Winters, Ann Holt, Virginia Leake, Beverly Soll, and Dorothy Neblett were recognized. The ratings of the mixed and all-girls chorus were recalled. Annual staff editor and associate editor Elaine Cundiff and Janie Jennings received annuals earlier in the month, as an appreciation token on the part of other staff members. Other staff members and library assistants were recognized. The library helpers get one-half credit toward graduation per year for library assistance.

Swimming Party Is Last Senior Social

A swimming party, climaxed with dancing, games, and annual signing was the final senior class social for seniors of Canyon High School. Room mothers served the meal of sandwiches, cake, ice cream, and ice tea in the high school cafeteria.

Plans were considered and a committee appointed to make plans for a senior class of '53 reunion later in the year.

Wayside News

Last Sunday was Rev. Travis Jordan's last day as he will be a youth director at Petersburg this summer and he plans to enter school at SMU, Dallas, this fall. The fourth quarter conference of the Methodist church was held Wednesday evening at Vigo Park after which a fellowship meeting and the presentation of a going-away gift for Rev. Jordan and family which was a combination toaster and waffle iron. We wish much success for this young family in all their undertakings.

Mrs. John Culwell, Mrs. Leroy Roberts, Mrs. Tom Trostle, Mrs. Will Edwards all attended the WSCS luncheon and training day in Tulia last Monday.

The M. L. McGehee children have donated a beautiful Wurlitzer piano to the Wayside community church in memory of their parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. M. L. McGehee, and brother, S/Sgt. Lyman York who gave his life in World War II.

Mrs. Melton McGehee, Mrs. Guy Watson, and Mrs. Ira Schrib were Amarillo shoppers last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Franklin visited last Wednesday in the home of her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Payne, in Clarendon.

Billy Spann of Amarillo visited one day last week in the J. R. Stockett home.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Franklin have been employed again as the teachers for Wayside school. These fine people are real community workers, as well as fine teachers. The community is very fortunate to have them in their midst.

Receives Two Copies of Texas Declaration of Independence

The Wayside school received two posters of the Texas Declaration of Independence. One is hanging in the classroom and the other is hanging in the auditorium. These were presented by the Honorable Karl Hobbitzelle, and the Hobbitzelle Foundation of Dallas.

This is a wonderful opportunity to bring to the attention of our youth and to show to the world why we cherish the ideas and ideals upon which our Texas heritage is based. The first printed copy of the Texas Declaration of Independence is exhibited in Texas Memorial Museum. Everyone is invited to see this when the opportunity presents itself.

Wayside H. D. Club Meets

The Wayside Home Demonstration Club met at the church May 21 with Mrs. Jo Ann Bannister as leader. She talked on outdoor living areas. The club also discussed plans for a sunrise breakfast down in the canyon some time in June, with all four Armstrong County clubs and their families participating. Also plans are underway for the annual club camp.

Just Between You, Me . . . and the Gatepost . . .

By Lawrence Hunnicutt

One of the questions of today's newspaperman is "Is the newspaper and radio media of dispensing the news as effective as the old 'Town Crier' of earlier times?" This might seem silly to you at first, but several times during the past year there have been complaints of "no publicity" in connection with a subject that has had several stories on it in The News. Many of these stories have appeared on the front page of the paper too. Now, if we had a town crier yelling out the news from the street corners, perhaps someone would hear about some of the news that is going around. Yes sir, it just may be that the town crier was so far ahead of today's civilization that he just looked like he was behind.

Hosea Foster and Dr. R. P. Jarrett have been trying to get Milton "Buff" Morris to sell his old model car for junk. It seems that Buff believes the car is worth more than the $15 the junk man would give him for it. During their discussion Buff pointed out that the car had an overdrive that would weigh about 200 pounds. Hosea quickly assured him that the junk man might allow an extra $2 for this additional metal. But Buff simply wouldn't agree to sell. He either has a lot of sales resistance or Hosea and Dr. Jarrett simply aren't good salesmen. Oh well, Alice Faye has her Cadillacs, Jack Benny has his Maxwell, so if Buff can just hang on to his car long enough perhaps he too will become famous and rich.

As everyone knows there wasn't much wheat made in these parts last year. Late last week County Agent John Brazzil said that wheat this year didn't have a chance of being as good as it was last year. But remember, there's always next year, and remember this, "If at first you don't succeed, etc." Somebody said it some time and maybe it's a good thing to remember.

The meanest man in town is one who won't even trust himself with a safety razor.

Roland Black, secretary-manager of the Canyon Chamber of Commerce, got started in work in really deep water last week when he started crusading for more traffic lights on the highway and the widening of Highway 87 at the underpass. Those problems have been under consideration for years and it's sure going to be nice when they are solved. Perhaps Roland is just the man to get the job done.

One of the big issues involved in getting the additional traffic lights we want concerns the traffic along the highway. If there is enough traffic at the time the men are checking it the lights will be installed, and if there isn't the lights will not be put up and that's that. Maybe we can have something in the column later about the exact time and place the check is to be made.

It was Truitt Hull's day at the meeting of the Randall County Civil Defense Thursday. Truitt had a speech that was warmed over from the preceding week. The speech was good, though. It was all about tornadoes, how they trevel, the damage they do, and the time of year in which they are dangerous. One of the startling facts that came out during the talk was the fact that you're safer in your car with your windows rolled down in a tornado than in a house with all the windows closed.

A flower peddler on Groucho Marx's show said that he worked on Wall Street. Marx was quick to point out that he (Groucho) lost his shirt on Wall Street in '29, "and," he continued, "you can also lose your plants there."

In the barber shop the other day we heard the difference in a cow man and a cattle man. A cow man is one who is in the cattle business but his assets along this line consists of only one cow. The cattle man has two or more cows. And that's a mighty fine line to draw between the two, pardner.

A contestant on a give-away radio show last week made the statement that he was the father of 11 children. The master of ceremonies asked what his occupation was and the contestant answered that he was a Good Humor Man.

Holders of Water Permits Must Drill Within 120 Days

At a regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District held on May 4, an amendment was made to a previous regulation requiring the issuance of a permit for the drilling of a water well. The Board amended its previous regulation as follows:

"All well permits issued between February 1, 1953, and May 4, 1953, will become invalid if actual drilling operations have not begun within 120 days from May 3, 1953.

"All well permits issued after May 3, 1953, shall become invalid after 120 days from the date of that permit's approval by the County Committee of the county in which the well will be drilled, if actual drilling operations have not begun within the specified time.

"If the applicant can satisfy the County Committee by showing sufficient evidence that the drilling of the well applied for was detained by reasons beyond his control in excess of the 120-day limit, the County Committee may, under its own motion, grant the applicant an extension for an additional 120 days."

This amendment was a suggestion made to the Board of Directors by the 65 County Committeemen serving in the 13 counties in the High Plains District.

HOPELESS

"How much is a wee tiny small radio, mister?"

"Six dollars, son."

"Gee, that's almost $9 more than I got."

The too-good child is ranked with delinquent as problem.

August 6, 1914, city valuations of Canyon were published as being $879,423.

National Association Wheat Growers Denounce Attack on Farmer Subsidies

"False thinking" about subsidies was denounced by members of the executive committee of the National Association of Wheat Growers following a meeting in Denver early this month. "Industry and labor are helped by protective tariffs and countless other subsidies, all of which add to the cost of producing wheat. Farmers must have protection if the government continues to subsidize other groups," Jens Terjeson, spokesman for the committee reported.

"We hear a lot of talk about government guaranteeing a profit to the farmer," said Terjeson, Pendleton, Ore., wheat farmer and president of the wheat association. "We don't hear nearly as much talk about the government making contracts with the makers of war materials that guarantee manufacturers a profit."

"Wheat growers are making plans for a program that can be operated at a minimum cost to the government, and we are insisting that industry and labor do the same thing," stated Henry Christensen, Weld county, Colo., wheat grower, vice-president of the national organization.

"Cost plus contracts with industry are keeping farm machinery prices at an all time high. If other groups continue to be subsidized, farmers must have comparable help in order to stay in business," he emphasized.

Members questioned the proposed USDA policy to restrict wheat production in view of the millions of hungry people in the world. The committee agreed that "we should find a way to expand export trade so these people can be fed."

Producers from eight wheat states attended the executive meeting to make plans to carry out recommendations of the annual meeting of the national association held in Omaha last February.

Research plans to fight greenbugs, mosaic, rust and smut were reported by Herb Hughes, Imperial, Nebr., producer, who had just returned from hearings with USDA officials and congressional committees in Washington, D. C.

Wheat policy for future years was discussed by Herb Clutter of Holcomb, Kans., member of Secretary of Agriculture Benson's wheat advisory committee. Clutter reported on recent meetings of the advisory committee and referred to the following principles adopted at the annual meeting of the National Association of Wheat Growers as a guide for shaping the program in future years.

1. Least possible cost to the government.

2. Least possible government control of farm operations.

3. 100 per cent of parity on wheat used for food in the United States.

4. Floor under wheat prices in case of emergencies.

5. Maintain productivity of the soil for future generations.

Attending the meeting, in addition to Terjeson, Christensen, Hughes and Clutter were R. L. Patterson, Oxford, Kans., Kenneth Kendrick, Stratford, Tex., Chester H. Gray, Nevada, Mo., C. W. Croes, Aberdeen, S. Dak., Ted Sorenson, Dutton, Mont., and E. J. Bell, Pendleton, Oregon.

Pat McCarran, U. S. Senator from Nevada: "In a free country we sometimes have to bear many abuses in order to preserve freedom."

Nelson G. Hanawait, Professor of Psychology, Rutgers University: "Some day soon people will submit to psychological check-ups just as naturally as they go for physical examinations."

Louis I. Newman, Jewish rabbi: "Liberty can be threatened not only by big government, but also by big business, or, for that matter, by the big union."

Bernard M. Baruch, retired industrialist: "Thinking has become a generally neglected art."

Dwight D. Eisenhower: "We must be ready always to work with all nations in good faith."
